

HOLSTER HIDDEN BY SUSPECT IN
B-GIRL KILLINGS
FOUND BY POLICE

But Search Fails to Turn Up Shell Casings Sauer Said He Threw Away—New Lead Falls Through.

A leather holster, which Robert W. Sauer said he hid after he allegedly killed two B-girls at Bonnie's Tavern last June 9, was found today by police under a log in a wooded area of Forest Park.

Police and park department employees were unable to find .32 caliber shell casings Sauer said he threw away near the log. The area searched was about 100 yards off Skinker boulevard, near Valley drive.

Sauer, 34-year-old transient, said he bought the holster last October at a store in the Page boulevard-Easton avenue district. After the shooting, he said, he went to Forest Park and slept in the bushes. He did not explain why he hid the holster.

Earlier police recovered more than 600 rounds of .32 caliber ammunition which Sauer had hidden in shrubbery not far from the place where the holster was found.

New Lead Collapses.
Sauer signed a statement following his arrest last Friday that he shot the two women, Mrs. Virginia (Patsy) Hane and Miss Jo Ann Yates after buying them about $35 worth of drinks. Another man, Salvatore (Sam) Cluffo, an illiterate produce market clerk, previously had told police he killed the women.

A new lead in the strange case fell through when a young woman, who had volunteered information that she saw Sauer at the murder scene, was unable to identify him in the police show-up. Detective Sgt. Frank O'Neill, head of the police homicide squad, quoted her as saying she never saw Sauer before in her life.

The witness tentatively identified a photograph of Sauer earlier today as the man who ran out of Bonnie's immediately after the shooting, colliding with her.

Sgt. O'Neill said police now discount entirely her story of the episode because a check of her movements on the day of the shooting indicate she could not have been in the area at the time the shots were fired.

Two witnesses previously identified Cluffo as the killer of the B-girls.

Another Identification.
One of the witnesses, Rayne Navin, was returned to St. Louis from Boston today and also will take a look at Sauer. Navin, who was stopping off in St. Louis while en route to Boston, has made a "positive" identification of Cluffo. He also claimed Cluffo had paid him $70 while at the killing.

Meanwhile, Circuit Judge Franklin Reagan announced that he would rule tomorrow on a motion for Cluffo's release on bond. Cluffo has been held without bond at City Jail on two indictments charging him with first-degree murder.

Cluffo, 27, told reporters Saturday that he falsely confessed the killings because police asked him "hard questions" and slapped him around. He claimed he had never been in Bonnie's Tavern in his life, although he admitted having been in other taverns in the area.

The tavern, operated in the name of Joseph Orlando, was Continued on Page 3, Col. 3.

Investigation Revealed Violations in St. Louis, Other Cities, Gov. Blair Says.

By BOYD F. CARROLL
Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 14—An undercover investigation of gambling devices in taverns has been made in St. Louis, Kansas City and other Missouri cities, disclosing that state liquor laws are being violated, Gov. James T. Blair announced today.

"Any type of pinball machine, slot machine or other equipment which may be used in wagering is barred in taverns under state law," he said. "We are finding violations of this regulation."

State liquor licenses issued to taverns will be suspended in cases where there is evidence of gambling on the premises, he said. Operators of these taverns will be cited for a hearing before the state liquor control supervisor, and licenses will be revoked when the evidence shows that the law has been violated, the Governor warned.

Federal Tax Stamps.
"If any barkeeper has bought Federal gambling tax stamps, he stands in line to lose his state liquor license," he continued. "We will ask the Federal Government for a complete list of gambling stamp purchasers in Missouri."

Federal law requires gamblers to purchase a $50 occupational tax stamp annually for themselves and for each of their employees. In addition, a $250 Federal tax must be paid for slot machines, pinball machines, bingo trees, punchboards and other gambling devices.

The Internal Revenue Service office in St. Louis sells Federal tax stamps to gamblers in the Eastern District of Missouri. Those in the Western District get their tax stamps in Kansas City.

Aided by State Patrol.
The state investigation was ordered by Governor Blair. Reports of numerous violations were received, Gov. Blair stated.

The Missouri Highway Patrol has assisted the state liquor control office in the undercover investigation. Its agents are not as well known as state liquor inspectors.

A number of establishments suspected of gambling operations have been under scrutiny for some time, Blair reported, but agents frequently have trouble getting into the rooms where the gambling is being conducted. He named Joplin as one place where investigators have had difficulty gaining entrance.

BLAST WRECKS HARDWARE STORE, TWO FEARED DEAD

STREATOR, Ill., July 14—An explosion, coming on the heels of a deluge of rain, ripped apart a three-story hardware store today. Two persons were reported missing and feared dead.

Some 16 employees and customers were in the store when the explosion occurred. Police said the missing included Don Williams, the owner, and Ray Aschinger, a customer. Fire delayed a search of the debris.

Selma Hultman, a bookkeeper, was seriously injured in the explosion. She was hurled from the first floor onto the balcony. Firemen rescued her by extending a ladder from another building across the alley.

ALDERMEN TRY TO CUT BUDGET AFTER BEATING FUEL TAX RISE

Board Votes Down Move to Reconsider Gasoline Measure Defeated Friday—Committee Set Up.

The Board of Aldermen turned to consideration of cutting the proposed city budget today after beating down efforts to enact a 7-cent a gallon increase in the gasoline tax.

The vote against reconsideration of the gasoline tax measure, defeated by one vote last Friday, was 13, yes; 9, no. Fifteen votes were required for bringing the bill to the floor again.

Board Votes Down Move to Reconsider Gasoline Measure Defeated Friday—Committee Set Up.

The Board of Aldermen turned to consideration of cutting the proposed city budget today after beating down efforts to enact a 7-cent a gallon increase in the gasoline tax.

The vote against reconsideration of the gasoline tax measure, defeated by one vote last Friday, was 13, yes; 9, no. Fifteen votes were required for bringing the bill to the floor again.

Alderman William C. Brady (Dem.), Twenty-sixth ward, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, asked that a special committee be appointed to consider possibilities of trimming the proposed $64,000,000 budget for municipal operations for the current fiscal year.

Opposes Budget Cuts.
In a prepared statement, Brady expressed his personal opposition to cutting the budget, which is in his committee for consideration. He noted the board had failed to pass enough of previously recommended measures to generate sufficient new tax revenues.

The board approved Brady's motion that the following members serve on the committee: Alderman Archie Blaise, Sixth Ward; Alfred Harris, Twenty-second; Raymond Leisure, Seventh; T. H. Mayberry, Fourth; A. Barney Mueller, Twenty-first; Anton E. Niemeyer, Eighth; Clinton T. Watson, Sixteenth, all Democrats; and Fred W. Haag, Twelfth and Joseph B. McDonald, Twenty-fifth, Republicans.

Before voting on Brady's motion, the aldermen amended it to make Brady and Board President Donald Gunn, (Dem.) ex officio members of the new committee.

The committee met immediately and elected Niemeyer and Watson co-chairmen, and Haag, secretary. The committee will meet again at 10:30 a.m. tomorrow.

$700,000 Yield.
Estimated yield from the increase of the gasoline tax from its present rate of 1 1/2 cents a gallon was put at $700,000. This would have been sufficient, with a shortened fiscal year, to overcome a deficit between anticipated income and the proposed budget.

A bill to shorten the fiscal year and thereby eliminate an extra $1,230,000 pay period was voted last Friday by the aldermen.

Aldermen favoring reconsideration of the proposed gasoline tax increase measure were Blaise, Brady, John T. Curry, Fifth ward; DeWitte E. Lawson, Nineteenth; Anthony T. Masczinski, Twenty-fourth; Mayberry, Mueller, Niemeyer, James W. Noonan, Third; Wayman F. Smith Jr., Eighteenth; Albert Villa, Eleventh, and Gunn, all Democrats, and McDonald.

Those against reviving the proposal were Carl Gassel, First ward; James E. Geisler, Tenth; Haag, Harris, Joseph E. Kavanaugh, Fourteenth; Joseph F. Noel, Twenty-seventh; Joseph P. Roddy, Seventeenth; John A. Sartorius, Twenty-third, and Watson. All but Haag are Democrats.

Alderman William A. Stolar, (Rep.), Twenty-eighth ward, arrived at the meeting just after the vote was taken. The remaining six aldermen on the 29-member board failed to attend.

Most of the seats in the visitor's gallery were occupied, apparently by gasoline dealers, when the vote was taken. Harris was the only speaker against reconsidering the measure.

After the vote, Brady read his statement which said in part: "As the bill for an increase in the gasoline tax has failed, we are now faced with a deficit of approximately $700,000 in our efforts to balance the budget for 1958-59, taking into consideration the fact we have passed a bill changing the date of the fiscal year to April 1, 1959, and that the Mayor will sign this bill, saving the city $100,000."

Senator Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, assistant Republican leader in the Senate, said "Things seem to go from bad to worse" but added that "at this juncture one should be cautious in his comments until all the facts are at hand."

State Department spokesman Lincoln White said "It is too early to say" whether President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic was directly involved in the Iraqi coup d'etat.

The United States Embassy in Baghdad sent word that Iraqi army tanks were deployed to protect the embassy and its personnel. Cables from Ambassador Waldemar Gailman reported also that crowds had gathered in front of the United States Information Agency office in Baghdad and he had ordered it closed for the day to avoid any incident.

The initial reports from Gailman said there had been no attacks or threats against Americans in Iraq, who number about 1500. However, all Americans were ordered to stay off the streets to avoid trouble.

All Brain and No Muscle Make Jack a Dull Boy, Study Shows

LOS ANGELES, July 14 (AP)—If the high school "grind" turned out to be a bum it really was not his fault, a survey of gifted children showed yesterday. It was just that nobody told the "grind" he needed muscles, too.

The survey, covering 237 gifted students in a Long Beach, Calif., high school, was made by Dr. Leslie N. Nason, professor of education at the University of Southern California.

It led to two conclusions: 1. Failure to develop good muscular co-ordination puts a ceiling on genius.

2. Intellectual superiority can be a hindrance to learning. "The gifted child generally prefers associating with teachers rather than playing with classmates on the playground," Nason said in an interview.

"His muscular control never develops properly and as a consequence neither does his penmanship, which depends on this co-ordination. Thus there develops a block between his thinking process and what he is able to intelligibly communicate in writing."

Question of Using U.S. Troops in Middle East Crisis May Be Discussed at Bipartisan Conference.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UPI)—President Eisenhower held an emergency conference with Democratic and Republican Congressional leaders today on the Middle East crisis caused by the revolt in Iraq.

There was general feeling among some of the Congressional chiefs summoned to the White House that the question of using United States troops in the area might be explored at the conference. There was no specific word to that effect.

The extraordinary meeting got under way at 2:30 p.m. with Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles attending. Twenty-two members of Congress were present.

United Press International said Prime Minister Macmillan summoned his cabinet into emergency session to consider the revolt in Iraq.

Mr. Eisenhower conferred with Nixon and Dulles in an earlier meeting before calling the Congressional leaders to the White House.

Besides the Democratic and G.O.P. leaders of the House and Senate, the President summoned the ranking members of both parties on the House and Senate Foreign Relations, Armed Services and Appropriations Committees.

The President met for 90 minutes with Nixon and Dulles. White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said he expected a statement following the President's conference with congressional leaders.

Some Republican Senators who went to the White House today for a regular G.O.P. leadership meeting described the President as "extremely disturbed" over Middle East developments.

Demand for Reappraisal.
By the Associated Press.
Senate demands were raised in Congress for a reappraisal of American Middle East policy in the light of the events in Iraq.

Among those who made the demands were Senator Theodore Francis Green (Dem.), Rhode Island, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, and Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem.), of Montana, a committee member.

Mansfield, in a Senate speech, said he hoped the possibility of sending a United Nations police force into the troubled area would be "immediately considered" in the U.N.

Green said the development demonstrates that "Arab nationalism" was the force which the United States has not yet learned to cope.

Green said it was essential "that we take a fresh look at our policies in the Middle East, including the Baghdad pact reported also that crowds had gathered in front of the United States Information Agency office in Baghdad and he had ordered it closed for the day to avoid any incident."

Secret Tests Have Cleared Way—Manned Satellite Would Be Next.

PARIS, July 14—Soviet Russian scientists and engineers are on the verge of another major breakthrough in the conquest of outer space. They have completed all preparations for launching Sputnik IV which will contain a live animal, probably a dog, which they expect to return to the earth along with the recording instruments in the nose cone.

This was learned from sources in Moscow believed reliable shortly before this reporter left the Soviet Union. It is of course the kind of information the Russians carefully screen by their censorship since their policy has been to announce the successful orbiting of their Sputniks only after this is an accomplished fact.

Preparing for Manned Flight.
Those thinking the action satellite program are confident that they have solved the recovery problem and that a dog, such as Laika which perished in Sputnik II, will be the first living creature to travel to outer space and return to earth. If they proved right—and a number of highly secret tests have prepared the way for the final experiment—then after a relatively short interval a manned satellite will be sent up.

It is possible that the expected triumph of Sputnik IV will be timed for national aviation day which comes at the end of the month.

Schoolgirl Asks Goldfine for an Outstanding Gift

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UPI)—Millionaire Bernard Goldfine, who likes to give gifts to officials, had a request for another gift today.

The Boston industrialist, whose gift-giving propensities and troubles with federal agencies have been making daily headlines, received the following letter from Orlando, Fla.: "Dear Mr. Goldfine: I am 12 years old and I am going in the seventh grade."

"I have listen to news about you. I think you should keep sending presents and money to people. The reason I writing to you is that I would like for you to send me around five stickout slips or crinolines."

"I know you don't know me but it would be a favor. 'Yours truly, Kathy Regan.' Crinolines slips are used to make dresses stand out stiffly. The words 'size small' were written in the margin."

BAGHDAD BLOC
FACES QUESTION OF HELPING IRAQ

Failure to Do So May End West's Influence on Arabs, British Believe.

By ARTHUR GAYSHON
LONDON, July 14 (AP)—The coup in Iraq today faces Britain and the other members of the Baghdad pact with the question of military intervention in a crisis considered in London to be far more urgent than the situation in Lebanon.

Iraq was the only Arab state unashamedly and legally bound to the west by treaty ties, as a member of the Baghdad pact with Britain, Pakistan, Turkey and Iran. The United States, although not a member of the alliance, supports it and is a member of its leading committees.

The immediate diplomatic reaction in the British capital was that failure by the West to come to the aid of the legal Iraqi Government almost certainly would spell the end of the Western influence throughout the Arab world.

Members Not Committed.
The Baghdad alliance does not commit its members to help each other automatically in case of attack or internal revolt. But it does place on the allies the obligation to consider all-out help in such situations.

All signs suggest that the Iraqi army plot was cunningly timed and long prepared.

King Faisal II and Premier Nuri Said were scheduled to fly tonight to Istanbul for a conference of the Asian members of the Baghdad member states. The Istanbul talks were to be a curtain raiser to a meeting of all five prime ministers of the pact nations in London July 28, with the Lebanese situation and the Cyprus dispute as the main items to be discussed.

The weakened position of Lebanese President Camille Chamoun almost automatically undermined the pro-Western Baghdad radio named Brig. Gen. Abdel Karim Kassem leader of the coup. It said he named a 13-man cabinet and a three-man sovereignty council headed by Lt. Gen. Naguib el Ribael. The council, it was announced, would exercise sovereignty until a plebiscite for president can be held.

Curfew in Baghdad.
The revolutionary regime proclaimed martial law throughout Iraq and a curfew in Baghdad. The army chief of staff, Ahmed Saleh Abdul, was appointed military governor general of the nation.

"We have decided to form an Iraqi republic which adheres to full Arab unity, co-operates with other Arab and Moslem countries, observes the principles of the United Nations, and honors pledges according to the country's interests and according to the (1955 Asian-African) Bandung conference principles," one broadcast said.

Cairo said the new sovereignty council sent this word to Nasser: "With great pride we recognize the U.A.R. and pray God help us all to serve Arabism and to support the free peoples in their struggle."

There were no reports to bear out Cairo claims that the revolt had spread to Jordan. Nor was there any clear-cut indication whether the rebel leaders had established effective control throughout Iraq.

The Baghdad radio was in the hands of the revolutionary leaders. Except for the reports of mob action there was no report of fighting.

Fate of Faisal, Premier in Doubt in Military Coup—British Embassy Reported Sacked.

BEIRUT, July 14 (AP)—A military coup ousted the pro-Western regime today in Iraq, keystone of the Baghdad pact, and proclaimed a pro-Nasser government.

The Baghdad radio said King Faisal had been overthrown and a republic established. An army brigadier was named as leader of the coup.

Direct communication with Baghdad was cut off, but advice reaching London via the Italian government said mobs had ransacked and set fire to the British embassy.

Tonight the Baghdad radio declared "the situation has finally been stabilized," and said Crown Prince Abdul Ilah, uncle of King Faisal and the man behind the throne, had been hanged.

Nuri Said, Prime Minister, was reported as the fate of the overthrown premier. Nuri said, long the strong man of Iraqi politics, a Cairo report had him killed by a mob.

One broadcast on the wavelength of the Baghdad radio, heard in Jerusalem, claimed Nuri said and Ilah were alive. The Baghdad broadcast that Ilah had been hanged outside the Ministry of Defense was heard later.

The rebels said they were being supported by "military positions all over Iraq."

There was no direct word of 23-year-old Faisal, who also is chief of state of the new Iraq-Jordan federation formed Feb. 14, 1958.

The Communist radio in Budapest said he had been arrested by the army.

The Jordanian embassy in London announced that 23-year-old King Hussein of Jordan, Faisal's half-brother, was undertaking to establish "public security and order on both sides of the union."

Proclamation by Hussein.
A dispatch from Amman said Hussein had proclaimed himself head of the Arab Union of Jordan and Iraq. It quoted a royal communique as saying that according to the Arab Union constitution, and due to the absence of King Faisal, Hussein has taken over powers as head of the Arab Union as from today.

The communique said Hussein also has taken over as commander in chief of the Arab Union and all armed forces of the Arab union. His first decree was to appoint Lt. Gen. Habis Majali as Arab army chief of staff. Majali replaces Lt. Gen. Rafiq Aref who is reported to have been put on pension by leaders of the coup in Baghdad who overthrew Faisal.

The Baghdad radio named Brig. Gen. Abdel Karim Kassem leader of the coup. It said he named a 13-man cabinet and a three-man sovereignty council headed by Lt. Gen. Naguib el Ribael. The council, it was announced, would exercise sovereignty until a plebiscite for president can be held.

GOLDFINE WON'T SAY IF HE FILED ANY INCOME TAX RETURN FOR '56

Industrialist Declines to Discuss Matter With Reporters—No Record of Form in Boston.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UPI)—Bernard Goldfine refused to tell newsmen today whether he filed a federal income tax return for 1956.

He said he would not discuss the matter at least until he resumes testimony tomorrow before the House subcommittee that has been investigating his relations with Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams.

Goldfine returned here this afternoon from a weekend at his home in Boston. Harry Cavanaugh, the district internal revenue collector in Boston, said earlier in the day that he still could find no record of Goldfine having filed a tax return in 1956.

Asked whether it was true he had no filed for 1956, the millionaire textile manufacturer said:

"I have read a lot of stories, and I am going to testify tomorrow."

He was then asked if this statement meant he was willing to testify about his federal income tax.

"I am going to testify," Goldfine repeated, "and I'll testify and rely on the advice of my attorney."

He also declined to say whether he would enter his refusal to testify concerning two of his companies involved in complaints made by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

His repeated refusal to discuss the finances of the two firms led the subcommittee to prepare for a possible contempt citation.

Records Called In.—The Boston American said congressional investigators had ordered all federal tax records in Boston of Goldfine and his operations shipped to Washington. The newspaper said the order also covered records of Miss Mildred Papernan, Goldfine's secretary, and of his two sons.

Chairman Oren Harris (Dem., Ark.), of the House influence-investigation subcommittee has signed subpoenas for four new witnesses in his group's inquiry into activities of Goldfine.

Harris told United Press International today that the subcommittee was sitting in on hearings on his subcommittee on Goldfine's affairs. He indicated another House inquiry into the Boston industrialist's tax affairs was possible later.

May Call Grand Jury.—Meanwhile, United States Attorney Oliver E. Gasch told United Press International he was considering calling a grand jury this week to look into the reported theft of documents from the hotel room here of Miss Papernan.

Gasch said he wanted evidence that would give him a "reasonable prospect" of conviction before taking the matter before a grand jury.

Police last week proposed that four persons take lie detector tests. They were Miss Papernan; Jack Lotto, press agent for Goldfine; Baron I. Shacklette, ousted investigator for the Harris subcommittee, and Jack Anderson, assistant columnist Drew Pearson. All four denied participation in the theft.

Lotto took the test later in the week and, according to police, passed. Miss Papernan was scheduled to take hers today. Shacklette and Anderson thus far have declined to take lie tests.

Shortly before the reported theft, Shacklette and Anderson were caught in a hotel room adjoining Lotto's suite with a microphone and a recording device. Shacklette's dismissal by the subcommittee followed.

Harris' disclosure of the additional subpoenas came in an interview on a television program, NBC's "Meet the Press," yesterday. Asked if he had signed subpoenas for new witnesses, he replied: "Yes, I signed subpoenas." He declined to elaborate.

Goldfine's attorneys were reported to be considering an appeal to the full House Commerce Committee to check down on its influence-investigation subcommittee's conduct of its hearings.

Won't Be Diverted.—Harris, asked about this on the TV program, charged the Goldfine forces were trying to "attract attention to some other direction" and declared, "This committee is not going to be diverted." He denied it had exceeded its authority, and pointed out he also is chairman of the parent Commerce Committee.

Harris hinted at new difficulties for the textile maker, who accused the subcommittee of "sneak, pry and spy" tactics last week shortly before going home to Boston for the weekend.

Harris said he had told Chairman Wilbur D. Mills (Dem., Ark.), of the tax handling House Ways and Means Committee that "certain phases" of the subcommittee hearings might come under Mills' jurisdiction and that these would be passed along "when the time comes."

RED KOREA WARNS U.N. TO REMOVE ATOMIC WEAPONS

PANMUNJOM, Korea, July 14 (UPI)—North Korea demanded today that all United States troops and atomic weapons be withdrawn from the Republic of Korea immediately or the United Nations must face the "ensuing consequences."

The demand was made at a meeting of the United Nations Command-North Korean military armistice commission.

Maj. Gen. Kang Sang, acting for Communist North Korea, served the ultimatum on the U.N.C. representative, United States Air Force Maj. Gen. Albert T. Wilson Jr.

"I lodge the strongest protest with your side against your criminal acts of illegally setting up a guided missile command," Kang said, "and establishing a guided missile base in South Korea in serious violation of the armistice."

Wilson immediately rejected the complaint. The Reds apparently were referring to the United States Army unit established July 4 near Shuncheon, 16 miles northeast of Seoul. The unit is armed with Honest John Rockets and 280-millimeter cannons capable of firing atomic shells.

Abducted Israelis Returned.—JERUSALEM, Israel Sector, July 14 (AP)—A Foreign Ministry spokesman said today a young Israeli couple abducted by Jordanians June 26 in the Eilat area were returned to Israeli authorities yesterday.

The boy and the girl, both 17, were bathing at the Red sea gulf of Aqaba near Eilat and were dragged across the border, the Israeli spokesman said.

By the Associated Press.—Mills said today he had no present plan to start a tax inquiry. He did not rule out the possibility that his group might go into the tax angle at some future time.

Harris acknowledged on the television show that his own expenses had been paid on certain occasions this year by non-government interests. He specifically mentioned a trip to St. Louis to address a Traffic Club luncheon. He said the difference between that and Adam's acceptance of hotel bill payments by Goldfine was the "association and relationship" between Adams and Goldfine.

The chairman said the threat of a possible contempt of Congress citation against Goldfine was not an idle one, as far as Harris was concerned.

The final decision on such an action would rest with the whole committee, Harris said, adding he personally would pursue the action if necessary.

ATTACKS USE OF MILITARY PLANES BY DR. EISENHOWER

MILWAUKEE, July 14 (AP)—Senator William Proxmire (Dem., Wis.), said last night that Dr. Milton Eisenhower's use of three military aircraft to fly back to Washington from a northern Wisconsin fishing resort cost the equivalent of the 1957 income taxes of four average industrial workers.

"When this sort of obvious misuse of taxpayers' money and other wastes in Government spending are diligently searched out and eliminated we can pay for urgently needed improvements," Proxmire said over a Milwaukee radio station.

Dr. Milton Eisenhower, the President's brother, last week used three military planes for the trip back to the Capitol from the resort. The White House defended the use of the planes on the ground that Dr. Eisenhower had to be back in Washington to confer with the State Department before leaving on a Central American good will tour.

YUGOSLAVIA WILL NAME NEW AMBASSADOR TO U.S.

BELGRADE, July 14 (AP)—Authoritative sources said yesterday Marko Nizetic has been named as Yugoslavia's new ambassador to the United States. An official announcement is expected in a few days.

The transfer of Nizetic, 37 years old, to Washington from Prague, where he now is ambassador, is part of a general shakeup of personnel in the Yugoslav diplomatic service.

Nizetic would replace Leo Matas, who has been brought back to Belgrade after four years in the United States to become chief assistant to President Tito.

QUEEN ELIZABETH STILL HAS FEVER BUT IS RECOVERING

LONDON, July 14 (UPI)—Queen Elizabeth II, who has been in bed for a week with acute catarrhal sinusitis, still is running a temperature, her doctors said today.

She had a "restful day" yesterday, but there was no indication when she would be able to resume her public appearances.

The queen's temperature was reported to have been hovering around 100 for several days. Palace sources said the "acute inflammation" of the sinus had subsided slightly and the catarrh was less severe.

REPLY TO SOVIET TRADE CREDIT BID IS MADE PUBLIC

Eisenhower Sees 'No Need to Formalize Relations' Between Business Groups.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—The United States today in effect rejected Soviet Premier Khrushchev's request for long-term credits to finance proposed Russian purchases of United States machinery and other products.

The White House made public a letter from President Eisenhower replying in part to a message Khrushchev sent Mr. Eisenhower June 2.

Khrushchev had suggested that stepped-up Soviet purchases in the United States could help overcome effects of the United States economic recession.

Mr. Eisenhower brushed aside Khrushchev's suggestion, saying:

"The extension of long-term credits for Soviet purchases in the United States would raise complex legal and political questions."

Mr. Eisenhower said further, "There is no need... to formalize relations between United States firms and Soviet trade organizations."

"The normal commercial credit terms presently available to Soviet trade organizations permit the further expansion of trade between our two countries."

Mr. Eisenhower wrote Khrushchev that he would "communicate further with your government" after the State Department finished examining specific proposals made by the Soviet premier.

The President suggested that Soviet trade organizations "may not be taking advantage of all available possibilities."

He reminded Khrushchev that the United States is a private enterprise not under government control.

EX-OFFICIALS SENTENCED IN INDIANA ROAD SCANDALS

INDIANAPOLIS, July 14 (UPI)—Special Judge Thomas Garvin today imposed sentences of two to 14 years in prison, and fines of $15,000, on Elmer Sherwood and William Sayer, two former Indiana state highway chiefs, convicted July 3 on charges of bribery and conspiracy in Indiana highway dealings.

The two men were convicted of bribing and conspiring to bribe Virgil Smith, former state highway chairman, to help a salesman, Arthur Mogilner, sell equipment and supplies to the state.

Mogilner's case has not yet come up for sentencing. He pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence.

BRITISH IMPOSE ALL-OUT CURFEW ON CYPRIOTS

Round-the-Clock Bar on Movement Ordered in Attempt to Halt Violence.

NICOSIA, Cyprus, July 14 (AP)—A round-the-clock curfew was imposed on Cyprus today to halt mounting communal warfare between Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

British Gov. Sir Hugh Foot ordered all persons to stay in their homes until further notice except civil servants and essential public workers. It was the most drastic security move since the shootings, bombings, ambushes and riots began on this Mediterranean island three years ago.

A government spokesman said district security committees would arrange for the townspeople to get food, probably through lifting the curfew at specified times for shopping. He insisted the government did not intend to starve the Cypriots into submission.

Greeks and Turks here have been fighting each other since June 8, when word got out that the new British plan for the island would not satisfy the Greek majority's desire to unite with Greece or the Turk's demands to partition the island to protect their rights.

51 Killed in 5 Weeks.—The Turks started the communal attacks. But last week Eoka, the Greek underground terrorist organization which had been generally quiet for months, announced it would take the warpath against the Turkish Cypriots.

There was a rising tide of Greek attacks on the Turks and of Turkish retaliation. Three Greeks and five Turks died yesterday, bringing the toll in the last five weeks to 31 Greek Cypriots and 20 Turkish.

Four Greek stores were burned out and the chapel of St. Maras in Limassol, containing the island's finest wood carvings, was badly damaged by fire.

The attacks ignored an unprecedented joint appeal for peace issued by Foot and the heads of the Greek and Turkish communities, Nicosia Mayor Themistocles Dervis and Dr. Fazil Kutehuk.

Foot also met today with Greek and Turkish Cypriot delegations on possible new security measures.

U.N. Action Aided.—Last week the island's Greek mayors accused the British administration—which has 40,000 soldiers here—of being unable to deal with the situation. They asked for United Nations observers and a U.N. police force. The Greek government

Iraqi Coup Shatters Chances For Lebanese Compromise

Revolution Strengthens Hands of Insurgents — Event Celebrated by Gunfire.

By RICHARD DUDMAN, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

BEIRUT, July 14—News of a coup d'etat in Iraq this morning dealt a shattering blow to hopes for an early compromise settlement of the two-month-old Lebanese insurrection.

The overthrow enormously strengthened the hand of the Lebanese rebels trying to overthrow the pro-Western government of President Camille Chamoun.

A flurry of rifle and machine gun firing early today signaled the first news of the Iraqi coup in the rebel-held Basta section in the center of Beirut.

First reports came from propaganda radio broadcasts from the Arab world. These were followed by broadcast from a station that called itself the Voice of the New Iraqi Republic.

Rebel leaders, jubilant over what they considered a victory for their side, rebroadcast the reports on their own clandestine radio station in Beirut. The news also was shouted from the tops of Beirut minarets through the loudspeakers that have replaced the traditional callers to prayer.

"Wonderful for Arabs," Saeb Salam, leader of the Beirut rebels, told the Post-Dispatch by telephone from his fortified home in the Basta.

"I think it is a wonderful event for all the Arab world. A new Arab country has been liberated. I expected it every moment."

The reaction will be to make us more determined than ever to pursue our goal to preserve Lebanon's integrity, sovereignty and independence.

Asked what was now the possibility of compromise, Salam said: "We are not prepared to compromise on principle but we have always been willing to discuss procedures."

A complete overthrow of the pro-Western Iraqi government of King Faisal and Prime Minister Nuri al-Said has suggested a U.N. trusteeship for the island.

In London, there were growing fears of a civil war between the 400,000 Greek Cypriots and 100,000 Turks on the island. The gravity of the situation increased chances for a meeting between British Prime Minister Macmillan, Greek Premier Constantinos Karamanlis and Premier Adnan Menderes of Turkey.

Britain's new partnership plan, announced on June 19, asked the Greek and Turkish governments to help administer the island with the British but up to now they have been cool to the idea.

CUBAN REBELS DUE TO FREE U.S. SAILORS TODAY

Evacuation From Mountain Hideout Expected to Take Several Days.

GUANTANAMO, Cuba, July 14 (AP)—Cuban rebels were expected to begin releasing their 29 captive American servicemen this afternoon after holding them more than two weeks. The evacuation from the rebels' isolated mountain camps may take four days or more.

Word of the anticipated release came from United States Consul Park Wollam, who has been dicker with Fidel Castro and his lieutenants in the mountains of Oriente province for the captives' return.

"We are hopeful all will be released," Wollam informed Rear Adm. Robert B. Ellis, commander of the American naval base on Guantanamo bay where the men are stationed.

Twenty-eight of the sailors and marines were kidnapped June 26 on a bus ride through the Cuban countryside and two more were captured near the base. One of the latter has been returned.

Ellis said he was not sure how many men would be freed today. The Navy helicopters which have brought back 20 United States and Canadian civilians seized by the rebels usually can carry only four passengers on each trip.

The captors have been the only foreign aircraft allowed to fly over rebellious Oriente province by President Fulgencio Batista's government. Yesterday a United States Marine Flying Boxer apparently strayed off its prescribed course on a flight from Guantanamo to Opa-Locka, Fla., and was forced down by Cuban Army fighter planes.

The transport landed at Santiago, the capital of Oriente. A United States consul there quickly intervened and the plane was on its way again a few hours later.

The United States embassy at Havana minimized the incident as "unimportant." The official Cuban explanation was that a misunderstanding had led to a misunderstanding had led to a misunderstanding.

PARKING BOARD MEETS TO STUDY EFFECT OF LOSS OF RIVER AREA

Commission Discusses Possible Ways to Counteract Results From Eliminating Facilities.

The Off-Street Parking Commission met at City Hall today to discuss the problem raised by the impending loss of municipal off-street parking facilities on the riverfront as a result of development of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial.

The work of filling and grading the riverfront memorial site has begun and it is estimated that two-thirds of the 4000 parking spaces now used on the municipal lot will be eliminated within six months. An area at the north end of the lot which will accommodate about 1200 machines will be left in use for some time longer.

Study to Be Made. Robert J. Stone, chairman of the Off-Street Parking Commission, said the commission will attempt to analyze the effect which elimination of the off-street parking facility will have upon the downtown area and traffic. It will discuss possible steps which might be taken to counteract the loss.

Concern over the loss of the off-street parking facilities was expressed by civic leaders, who noted that loss of any such facilities would have an adverse effect on the downtown area. Sidney Maestre, board chairman of Mercantile Trust Co. and chairman of the organizing committee of Downtown in St. Louis, Inc., a civic group, attended the meeting at the invitation of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker. Maestre expressed concern over the impending loss of the municipal parking facility.

"In view of the fact that reports of municipal authorities and of private parking lot operators are so much in disagreement as to the need for additional off-street parking facilities," Maestre said, "I think the first thing to do is to determine just what the situation is."

Situation at Present. Advocates of municipal off-street parking facilities estimate there is need for 8000 additional off-street parking spaces at the present time, while the private operators contend on the basis of a survey made by them in 1956 that the commercial lots and garages in the downtown area ordinarily have 4000 available spaces during peak periods.

Maestre said he believes both sides "have a mutual interest in improvement of the downtown area." He said he will recommend to the Mayor that city authorities get together with representatives of the private parking lot operators "and work out a system, mutually agreeable, to determine just what the facts are."

Edwin M. Clark, president of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. and a member and past-president of Civic Progress, Inc., said the downtown area would be seriously hurt by the loss of the river-front parking lot, unless other parking facilities were provided.

Elimination of 4000 off-street parking spaces would have an adverse effect on shopping, jobs and real estate values in the downtown area, he said.

HOTEL UNIONS TO BEGIN CONTRACT NEGOTIATIONS

Negotiations for a new wage agreement for 4000 employees of 22 St. Louis hotels will be opened this week by representatives of the St. Louis Hotel Association and the joint executive board of five unions, it was announced today.

Joseph S. Brown, secretary of the Joint Executive Board, said the present contract expires tomorrow. It is expected that operations will continue during negotiations. The unions, Cooks, Bartenders, Waiters, Waitresses and Miscellaneous Hotel Employees, are demanding improved wages and working conditions, Brown said.

BODY IS TAKEN FROM RIVER

The body of an unidentified man was recovered from the Mississippi river at the foot of Iron street by the Coast Guard yesterday.

Police said the man appeared to be about 38 years old, five feet seven inches tall and weighing 160 pounds. There were no marks of violence on the body, which was clothed in brown pants and a blue T-shirt.

SURPLUS FOOD DISTRIBUTION FOR JULY STARTED

The July distribution of federal surplus commodities to more than 5000 needy families in St. Louis began this morning at Building 203 of the old small arms plant, 4700 Goodfellow boulevard.

Several hundred persons, representing individuals and 10-member families, were lined up when distribution personnel began handing out the food. The July issue includes butter, dried milk, cheese, rice, flour and cornmeal.

The distribution to certified applicants will take place every day through Friday, from about 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

In St. Louis county, distribution to approximately 1400 families will take place July 24 at Building 23, Air National Guard Station, Lambert-St. Louis Field.

RESTRAINING ORDER SOUGHT IN SCHOOL BOARD OUSTER

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 14—A writ of prohibition against Robert Kratky, special commissioner appointed to supervise the taking of depositions in a suit to oust Dr. James J. McCaffery from the Board of Education, was sought today in the Supreme Court.

Mortimer A. Rosecan, attorney for Dr. McCaffery, filed a motion asking the court to restrain Kratky from ordering Dr. McCaffery to give his deposition in the presence of newspaper reporters and before the depositions of the plaintiffs in the case are completed.

When Dr. McCaffery was scheduled to give a deposition last Wednesday, Rosecan objected, saying he had not finished taking testimony from Louis H. Antoine and Daniel L. Schaffly, the plaintiffs, who had given depositions in June.

Kratky overruled Rosecan's objection and ordered the deposition to proceed. Rosecan then announced he would seek a writ.

BIPARTISAN DRIVE URGED FOR A SPRING PRIMARY

Republican and Democratic candidates were urged yesterday by F. Neil Aschmeyer, Democratic candidate for state representative, to join in "a concerted effort to obtain a spring primary."

"Primary elections should be advanced to the spring of the year to assure maximum citizen interest and participation," Aschmeyer said. He spoke at a meeting of his supporters at 39 Enfield road, Olivette.

He said that voters' interest in public issues is low in August. Aschmeyer is a candidate for representative from the Fourth Legislative District of St. Louis county.

RENAMED TO CREDIT POST

Harold A. Wallace, 45 Glen road, Webster Groves, has been re-elected executive vice president and treasurer of the Associated Credit Bureaus of America, Inc., for 1959, it was announced today. The election took place at the forty-fourth annual International Consumer Credit Conference in Los Angeles.

John L. Spafford, 314 Park lane court, Kirkwood, and Otto H. Lanfersieck, 3712 Bancroft avenue, were also re-elected. Spafford is assistant treasurer, and Lanfersieck is secretary.

denied a new license by the state as a result of the shooting and previous evidence of B-girl activity there. It has been closed since July 1, beginning of the new fiscal year. Sauer also signed a statement saying he shot and seriously wounded Harvel Hensley, 1721 Carroll street, in Forest Park last June 20. Police have been unable to make a ballistics test in this case of either of two .32 caliber revolvers carried by Sauer. Hensley's serious condition has prevented removal of any of the slugs from his body. He was shot eight times.

Tests indicate one of the guns was used in the B-girl killings. Sauer claims he shot the women because they refused to assist him in a holdup plot and threatened to call police. He said he shot Hensley in an attempted holdup.

RODNEY A. WEISS TAKES OATH AS CITY COURT JUDGE

Rodney A. Weiss was sworn in today as Judge of City Court No. 1 in ceremonies held in the office of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

Weiss succeeds Robert G. Dowd, who resigned May 1 to run for the Democratic nomination for Congress, Second District. Weiss, who has served as provisional judge in the city courts, will serve the remainder of the full term, ending April 1961. Judges of the two city courts, who receive a salary of $9900 each annually, are appointed by the Mayor.

Educated at Roosevelt High School and Washington University Law School, Weiss, a Democrat, has practiced law since 1951 as a member of the firm of Weiss and Rosenberg. At Washington University he was associate editor of the Law Quarterly. He is married and lives at 3734 South Spring avenue with his wife and two daughters. He is 33 years old.

UNDERWATER RECORD GOES TO NEW JERSEY SKINDIVER

The underwater endurance record set Friday by Lee Umfleet, St. Louis lifeguard, was broken yesterday by another skindiver, Ernest J. (Red) Stevens, 22 years old, sat at the bottom of a swimming pool for 31 hours and 10 minutes.

Umfleet, in publicity stunt sponsored by Radio Station WIL, sat in a chair fastened to the bottom of Down's Swimming Pool, 8656 South Broadway, for 30 hours and nine minutes.

Fellow skindivers kept Stevens company, playing checkers with him in a roped-off area nine feet under water. Complex equipment enabled him to eat, drink and read.

BOY, 3, KILLED WHEN SPEEDING CAR HITS AUTO

Vehicle Goes Out of Control After Being Struck From Rear on State Route 94.

Mark Lee Allen, 3 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Allen, 705 St. Anthony lane, Florissant, was killed yesterday when the automobile in which he was a passenger was struck from the rear by a speeding automobile which went out of control into a roadside ditch.

The accident occurred at 3:40 a.m. on State Highway 94 between St. Charles and Boschertown. Mrs. Allen, 26, and Mrs. Robert Temm, 34, of 3324 S. Simms avenue, Overland, were seriously injured. Mrs. Temm was driving the automobile in which Mrs. Allen and the child were passengers. Sheriff Lester Plackmeyer of St. Charles county reported.

Driver of the other car was Arnold V. Hollander, 20, a tree trimmer, 1607 North Second street, St. Charles. Sheriff Plackmeyer said. Hollander was held today under $10,000 bond on a charge of manslaughter.

Hollander was arraigned in Magistrate's Court today, and a preliminary hearing was set for July 22. He was unable to post bond.

Up to 110 Miles an Hour. Two men who had run out of gasoline were given a ride by Hollander on Highway B. The two men said that Hollander was driving 80 to 85 miles an hour on Highway B and at speeds up to 110 miles an hour on Highway 94. Hollander said he had been driving 60 miles an hour, the night speed limit.

The men said that Hollander was driving 110 miles an hour when he pulled into the passing lane and saw an oncoming automobile. They said he pulled back into the southbound lane and braked his car when he saw the Temm automobile.

Sheriff Plackmeyer said Hollander's car skidded 226 feet and spun around after he apparently tried to swerve to avoid hitting the rear of the Temm automobile.

One of the men, Carl Lewis, 26, of 2318 North Fifth street, St. Charles, suffered chest injuries. The other passenger was John Henry Fry, Augusta, Mo.

The two women and the child were thrown from the automobile. Another automobile, occupied by their husbands, Robert Temm and Earl Allen, was ahead of the car driven by Mrs. Temm.

Allen said he realized the automobile driven by Mrs. Temm had been struck when he saw the headlights weaving in the darkness. Allen, who had been having trouble with the brakes of his car, said he asked that his wife and son ride with Mrs. Temm because he thought her automobile would be safer.

Crystal City Man Killed. Jerry LaMure, 45, of Crystal City, was fatally injured and his wife and two children were seriously injured Saturday night when the automobile in which they were riding collided

MONKEYS LOOSE IN PET SHOP GIVE IT THE BUSINESS

Two large monkeys broke out of their cage in Ronnie's Pet Shop, 7723 Ivory avenue, last night and for about three hours their joy was unrestrained. They tore the place up, causing damage estimated at $300.

The break occurred about 7:30 p.m. One of the monkeys found the switch and turned the lights on and a crowd soon formed outside, watching them swing from shelf to shelf.

The owner, Ronnie Ecker, was in a movie and did not arrive until 11:30 p.m. His parents meanwhile had opened the door for police and a man from the Humane Society, James Sillman.

Before they could be caught the monkeys pushed over aquariums, ate goldfish, threw bird seed, turned some dogs out and got in with the cats. "It was a mess," said Ronnie. "I was until 4:30 this morning cleaning up."

ARMY PRINTING SERVICE HERE TO CLOSE SEPT. 30

The Army Printing Service, in the Adjutant General's Publications Center, 1655 Woodson road, Overland, is to be closed Sept. 30, it was learned today. Approximately 28 civilian employees, all with civil service seniority ratings, will be affected by the deactivation.

The unit has been supplying printing ordered by various Army camps, posts and stations in the Middle West, including Headquarters, First Army, Chicago. Production costs have risen as orders for printing have declined, it was reported in Washington, making it cheaper to give the business to private printing firms.

The "house" gets a good take on the game, collecting on all bets on the roll of seven. Picnic officials told the police a lottery that was planned had been called off.

ACADEMY BUILT IN 1849 BEING RAZED FOR HIGHWAY

A two-story building at 4220 North Eleventh street, being wrecked to make way for the Mark Twain Expressway, was built in 1849 as the Fairmount Academy of the Presbyterian Church. It was noted today by Dr. William G. Swokosky, whose hobby is the study of old buildings.

The academy was established by a group of leading citizens as a school for their children. It was discontinued in 1864 because of the Civil War.

The building and lot changed hands many times after that, and finally were sold to the state last year for $6000.

RACKETEER GROUP PREPARES TO CITE MOBSTER

Contempt Action May Be Used as Court Test of Use of Fifth Amendment.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UPI)—The staff of the Senate Rackets Committee today began drafting papers needed to cite Chicago gangster Anthony (Tony) Accardo for contempt of Congress in refusing to answer committee questions.

At the same time, committee investigators promised to try to shed new light on mobsters' efforts to scare prospective witnesses into silence.

Among the witnesses scheduled to testify when hearings resume tomorrow is Gus Allgauer of Chicago, owner of the Fireside restaurant which was burned out by hoodlums May 13 after Allgauer talked with committee investigators.

Committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said he knew of other attempts to gag committee witnesses. He declined to give details.

It was expected Allgauer would be asked if mobsters used to meet at his restaurant and what he knew about the two arsonists who sprinkled gasoline about his establishment before putting it to the torch.

The committee is investigating efforts by gangsters to infiltrate labor and management groups in Chicago's restaurant industry and to sell protection from labor troubles to restaurant owners.

Committee chairman John L. McClellan (Dem., Arkansas), has denounced Accardo, reputed successor to Al Capone, for "capricious use and abuse" of the Fifth Amendment.

McClellan and other committee members were angered last week when Accardo and former Capone attorney Abraham Teitelbaum repeatedly refused to answer questions and invoked the amendment against possible self-incrimination.

The committee hoped to use the current hearings to bring about a court test of such behavior by witnesses. Its staff was expected to complete the papers necessary to cite Accardo for contempt in about three weeks.

Before a contempt of Congress citation can be prosecuted, it must first be approved by the committee and by the Senate. Conviction carries with it a maximum penalty of one year in prison and a $1000 fine.

Iraq Revolt

would be a stunning blow to the west. It would knock a key pin—Iraq—out of the anti-Communist Baghdad pact in the middle east.

Iraq is one of the Middle East's richest oil countries. The British-controlled Iraqi Petroleum Co. produces most of Iraq's oil. The product goes largely to western Europe.

The Baghdad broadcasts were greeted with jubilation in Cairo, Damascus, Moscow and east European satellite capitals.

Here in Lebanon, rent for more than two months by a revolt against pro-Western President Camille Chamoun, rebels in the moslem quarter of the capital celebrated with a wild firing of guns.

Communist broadcasts said the coup was carried out because Iraq had planned to give military aid to the Lebanese Government.

Orders from the Baghdad radio told the people not to attack foreign embassies or other establishments, and announced that the lives and property of foreigners would be safeguarded.

Military music and such slogans as "Long live Nasser the hero," and "We want a single Arab army," were broadcast between communiques.

New Leaders Announced. Brig. Gen. Abdel Guellil Hattam was announced as the new army commander. New designations for several army units that had been named for Crown Prince Abdul Ilah and Queen Mother Aliya also were announced.

Beside Gen. Kassem as premier and defense minister, the announced new cabinet included: Brig. Gen. Abdel Sala Mohamed Aref, Deputy Premier and Interior Minister; Brig. Gen. Mohamed Hadid, Finance; Brig. Gen. Abdel Gabbar, Foreign Affairs; Mustafa Ali, Justice; Ibrahim Kubba, Economy; Bager Omar, Education; Nagy Taleb Abu Nari, Social Affairs; Saad Ali, Public works and Communications; Brig. Gen. Fouad Bihaky, Construction; Mohammed Saleh

Where Revolt Flared

Map locates Iraq in relation to rest of tense Middle East area.

Mahmoud, Health; Rachid Elhaj Mahmoud Agriculture; Seddik Semsheh, National Guidance (propaganda).

Crown Prince Abdul Ilah, who was reported killed by rebel mobs, served as regent until his nephew Faisal came of age in 1953. He was regarded in Iraq as still being the real power in the palace.

Faisal and Premier Nuri Said had been scheduled to fly to Istanbul today for a meeting of the Asian members of the Baghdad Pact. They did not arrive in Istanbul.

Brief Moscow Broadcast. The news of the Iraqi revolt was broadcast briefly this morning from Moscow. A Tass dispatch dated from Damascus reported the Baghdad radio announcements and said: "The royal regime has been overthrown and the Iraq Republic has been proclaimed."

The Baghdad radio said the commander of the Iraqi army had closed all frontiers and airports until further notice and that no one would be permitted to enter Iraq without special permission from army headquarters.

Overthrow of the Iraqi king and more particularly of Nuri Said, is the most serious blow to the Western position in the Middle East since Nasser nationalized the Suez canal.

Iraq was the West's chief bulwark in the area against Nasser's ambition to unite the Arab world under his leadership.

Despite a continual flood of propaganda from the Cairo radio and the machinations of Egyptian-Syrian agents, Nuri Said had kept Iraq as the only Arab member of the Baghdad pact. Faisal and his cousin, Hussein of Jordan, in May united their countries in an Arab federation headed by Faisal as a western-facing counter to the U.A.R.

Plot Long Brewing. King Hussein's days now apparently are numbered. Cairo newspapers reported last week that a number of Jordanian army officers had been arrested for plotting to overthrow the monarch. In April 1957 only the loyalty of the Bedouin troops who form the bulk of the Jordanian army and the threat of action to back Hussein by Iraqi and Saudi Arabian forces and by the United States Sixth Fleet enabled the young king to oust pro-Nasser government and army leaders who planned to dethrone him.

The Baghdad radio this morning was the only communication link with the Iraqi capital and censorship apparently was in force. Cable offices in London said they could not contact Baghdad. All telephone communications between London and Baghdad had been out since midnight.

By the United Press International. Baghdad radio and diplomatic dispatches indicated the revolution began shortly before dawn and that the rebels quickly won control of the capital, and proclaimed a republic.

Later broadcasts spoke of "resistance" but there was no clue to the extent of the fighting. The rebels themselves proclaimed "total victory."

Palace Reported Stormed. Unofficial reports reaching Istanbul said rebel forces stormed the royal palace during the night and that Faisal was besieged there. These reports said two bodies were thrown from the palace during the rioting. Their identity was unclear.

Other reports reaching Beirut told of rioting outside Abdul Ilah's palace and said that the uncle and chief adviser to the king was killed and his body dragged through the streets.

In what appeared to be a broadcast from the streets of Baghdad, crowds could be heard shouting, "Nasser, we are your soldiers."

The broadcast indicated there was some opposition and said "some of our compatriots are firing at us." The announcer appealed for calm and said "opposition obstructs this sacred revolution."

Some of the "Free Iraq Radio" broadcasts sounded like the propaganda line used by both Moscow and by the Cairo and Damascus radios.

"Compatriots, now we can speak and breathe," one broadcast said. "The handcuffs have been shattered. Now we can raise our heads and speak freely and say, 'Down with imperialism, with traitors and with mercenaries!'"

"Today is a day to kill and be killed," said another. "Down with imperialist agents and those who wish to push the people of Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon and the U.A.R. to the precipice of doom and destruction."

One report reaching London said demonstrators broke into the compound of the British Embassy but that all British nationals were safe. The British consulate and information center near Abdul Ilah's palace were evacuated during the rioting.

The United States Air Force said it had not been asked to evacuate any Americans from the capital.

With Faisal and Nuri Said missing, plans for the Istanbul conference of the Baghdad Pact were canceled. Instead, the Iranian, Pakistani and Turkish officials scheduled a meeting in Ankara later in the day.

The Pakistani delegation was still flying toward Istanbul when emergency orders were radioed to the pilot to proceed instead to Ankara. Similar orders were sent to the aircraft carrying the Shah of Iran to Turkey from the French Riviera.

Iraqi Rebels Prevent TWA Airline From Taking Off. PARIS, July 14 (UPI)—A Trans World Airlines Super Constellation was unable to leave Basra airport in Iraq today. Officials said they believed rebels were in control of the field.

A spokesman at TWA's European headquarters here said the plane, en route for New York from Manila, had landed at Basra, Iraq's second city, for a scheduled 45-minute stop this morning. It was refused permission to leave however, and was still there five hours later.

The plane was carrying 26 passengers and a crew of 10.

Iran Strengthens Guard Along Iraq Border. TEHRAN, July 14 (AP)—Iran today strengthened its guard along the Iraq border as a precautionary measure to prevent any illegal entry. Two hundred Iranian soldiers were stationed outside the Iraqi embassy in Tehran as a precautionary measure.

With the Shah still on vacation in Europe and Premier Manouchehr Eghbal in Istanbul for a Baghdad pact meeting, government officials refused to comment on the Iraqi situation other than to express astonishment.

Aldermen

about $1,253,000 in this fiscal year.

Brady warned the aldermen in his statement that there is no bill pending before this board whereby this deficit can be met, unless some other measures are introduced.

The statement continued: "The members of the Ways and Means Committee have worked diligently and untiringly in our efforts to balance the budget, and have introduced and recommended numerous revenue increasing measures, some of which this honorable board has passed, with a total of $4,071,800 new revenue. Others have been rejected, which, of course, is your personal privilege."

"As chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, I am not sympathetic to any cut in the budget, as I feel any substantial cut would result in curtailment of some vital services of the city administration, and seriously affect the citizens of our good city."

"I would suggest that at this time that a new committee be named to investigate the possibilities of trimming the budget so that no essential services will be cut."

Brady then recommended the members to be named to the special committee, stating he had already obtained their consent to serve if chosen.

A member of the Mayor's staff said the estimate board at the outset stipulated that he aldermen not trim the budget proposal if the estimate board moved to shorten the fiscal year. But the board later decided not to insist on the proviso, he said, when it became apparent that all available means would have to be exercised to ease the city's financial crisis.

Other reports reaching Beirut told of rioting outside Abdul Ilah's palace and said that the uncle and chief adviser to the king was killed and his body dragged through the streets.

In what appeared to be a broadcast from the streets of Baghdad, crowds could be heard shouting, "Nasser, we are your soldiers."

The broadcast indicated there was some opposition and said "some of our compatriots are firing at us." The announcer appealed for calm and said "opposition obstructs this sacred revolution."

Some of the "Free Iraq Radio" broadcasts sounded like the propaganda line used by both Moscow and by the Cairo and Damascus radios.

"Compatriots, now we can speak and breathe," one broadcast said. "The handcuffs have been shattered. Now we can raise our heads and speak freely and say, 'Down with imperialism, with traitors and with mercenaries!'"

"Today is a day to kill and be killed," said another. "Down with imperialist agents and those who wish to push the people of Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon and the U.A.R. to the precipice of doom and destruction."

One report reaching London said demonstrators broke into the compound of the British Palestinian Arabs—had been barred from approaching Iraq's border areas, military camps and all oil installations.

Early this month Iraq virtually closed its borders with Syria to normal transit traffic after the Turks acted similarly along their Syrian frontier.

These moves, combined with a good deal of troop activity north of Baghdad, increased nervousness in the Iraqi capital. Reports reaching London indicated many Iraqis felt something was about to happen but could not guess what.

The mounting nervousness coincided with a renewal of intense political activity in the Kurdish tribes' mountain areas in the north of the country. This activity was reflected also among the big Kurdish communities working in the oil fields around Kirkuk and in the army itself, which has large numbers of Kurds.

Kurdish restlessness was spurred by radio programs in Kurdish beamed from Cairo. Diplomats here had reports of sudden visits in the Kurdish districts of Iraq from important Kurds from other areas, notably from Syria, Turkey and Russia.

Officials have expressed fears privately over the past few months that both Nasser and the Russians would have the opportunity of exploiting Kurdish dissidence through the Kurds who either live under their control or look to them for political guidance.

Eisenhower Makes New Gesture Favoring Adams

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—President Eisenhower made a new gesture today to indicate his regard for Sherman Adams, the President's chief assistant who has been under fire in Congress.

Mr. Eisenhower had Adams read the citation accompanying the award of the Medal of Freedom to Lewis L. Strauss, retiring chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

News cameras recorded the scene and it was witnessed by a crowd of dignitaries including Vice President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

MANY NEW NAMES LISTED IN CHANG'S CABINET SHAKE-UP

TAIPEI, Formosa, July 14 (AP)—Foreign Minister George Yeh was replaced today as Nationalist China announced a new cabinet.

The cabinet contained many new names. It was hailed immediately as the strongest since the Nationalists left the mainland in 1949.

Yeh's replacement suggested he might succeed Hollington Tong as Ambassador to the United States. Former Deputy Premier Huang Shao Ku is the new foreign minister. Tong has long wanted to retire.

Headed by Vice President Chen Chang, Chiang Kai-shek's political heir, the cabinet includes Lt. Gen. Chiang Ching-kuo, Chiang's elder son, as minister without portfolio. This is his first cabinet post.

Wang Yun Wu, one-time boss of the Shanghai commercial press, was named deputy premier.

Nine of the 19 members of the cabinet are new.

PLANE SEARCHED FOR BOMB

Trans-World Airlines asked St. Louis county police to search one of its two-engine planes from Kansas City here today after being told by an anonymous caller on the telephone at Kansas City that a bomb was aboard.

The plane arrived at 12:15 p.m. Five officers searched it and found nothing unusual. There were 10 passengers.

10,000 Climb Mt. Fuji. TOKYO, July 14 (AP)—Mount Fuji, Japan's favorite mountain, swarmed with climbers yesterday. Ten thousand persons, a record number for a single day, climbed to the summit of the famous dead volcano. Police reported one climber was killed by falling rock and another was injured in a fall.

SIX CENSUSES SCHEDULED ON ALL ASPECTS OF U.S. LIFE
WASHINGTON, July 14 (UPI)—The Census Bureau reported yesterday that it will begin six censuses next January to gather new statistics upon virtually all aspects of American life.
The bureau said it will gather data next year on United States business, manufacturing, mineral industries and agriculture. Aside from 30,000 part-time field workers who will make the farm survey, all of these censuses will be conducted by mail by the bureau's regular staff.
In 1960, the bureau said, it will conduct the regular population and housing census which it holds every 10 years. A bureau spokesman estimated that 130,000 persons would be employed on a part-time basis in 1960.

PARISIANS CHEER DE GAULLE ON BASTILLE DAY

PARIS, July 14 (UPI)—Premier De Gaulle paid tribute to the French army today at a military parade highlighting France's Bastille day celebration.
The 67-year-old general reviewed more than 15,000 troops on the Champs Elysees while a throng of spectators cheered, waved tricolor flags and shouted, "Vive De Gaulle."
Following the parade, De Gaulle flew to the big Mediterranean naval base city of Toulon for a similar review of France's navy forces.
Gen. Raoul Salan and Brig. Gen. Jacques Massu, key figures of the French revolt in Algeria, were cheered loudly by Parisians when they entered the reviewing stand. The cheers swelled to a roar when De Gaulle drove up with President Rene Coty.
Two thousand Algerian Moslem troops marched in the parade. As they passed the reviewing stand, the official announcer boomed over the public address system that "Algeria is French" and shouted: "Don't you believe these people want to be French?"
Suddenly three of the parading Algerian youths whipped out the green-and-white flag of the national rebels. The cheers of the crowd turned into outraged yells. Police moved in quickly and arrested the youths.

The ceremonies followed the wishes of the premier to symbolize a renaissance of French glory at home and abroad under his leadership.
Bastille day commemorates the anniversary of the storming of the Bastille in 1789, an act that sparked the French Revolution and gave France its first taste of freedom. It is often compared with the American Fourth of July.
Calls for Reform.
By the Associated Press
De Gaulle in a speech yesterday called for reform of the French union into a vast, free community in which Algeria would have a special "choice place."
Aids said De Gaulle deliberately did not specify what this place would be because he felt it would be unfair to make a decision until after the people of Algeria had had a chance for a free vote.
The aids said the Premier still had an open mind on the question of Algeria's links with France and that the final decision could not be reached until all the people in metropolitan France and Algeria had had a chance to express themselves.

Sputnik IV
the end of the month. Soviet citizens are constantly reminded of the edge that Russian Sputniks gained over those of the United States. The demonstration of a successfully recovered cone with a living animal in it would be exploited to the fullest, both at home and abroad.
There is no doubt that satellite launchings attempts have failed in the Soviet Union. Top specialists have admitted this privately. It is believed that the intention was to send Sputnik III, weighing a ton and a half, aloft on May 1, a major Communist holiday, but the launching did not succeed until May 15.
Failures Can't Be Proved.
But with control of information as complete as it is in the Soviet Union, failures cannot be documented on the outside. The Soviet citizen—like the rest of the world—gets only the news of the successes. These, beginning with No. 1 last October 4, have been formidable.
The entire stress in Russian discussion of earth satellites has been on their "peaceful" purposes in the exploration of outer space. This ignores the fact that a launching device capable of sending a ton and a half satellite into orbit obviously is powerful enough to send an intercontinental ballistic missile many thousands of miles.
The propaganda of peaceful research fits the main theme of "peace loving" Russia standing out against the "warmongering Western powers."
Having seen something of the surface of Russian life, which is so often harsh, drab and primitive, the returning visitor must wonder how such a people has been able to forge so far ahead in this field vital to survival both in science and in national defense. The answer would seem to be two fold.
First is the capacity for concentration in a completely controlled society. The Russian people might like more automobiles and more television sets, not to mention more food and more clothing rather than Sputniks. But they cannot make their desires known except in the most limited way, and brains and skill and money are concentrated on what the Communist hierarchy believes to be an absolutely essential goal.
Second, and probably more important, is the fact that incentives of cash and other material rewards, are at work in those fields on which the

SUPERMARKET IN DELLWOOD ROBBED OF $200

The manager and the cashier of a Schnuck super market at 9905 West Florissant avenue, Dellwood, were held up today by an armed man, who fled with about $200 in $1 and $5 bills. Seven clerks and 13 customers were unaware a holdup had taken place.

Entering the store shortly after the 9 a.m. opening hour, the robber walked to a counter where Malcolm Dalrymple, manager, and Mrs. Nora Pligh, cashier, were working.

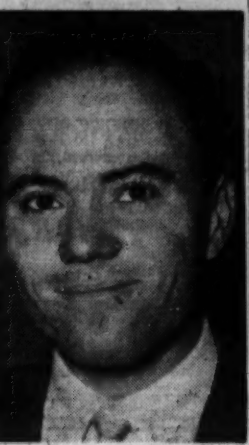

"Give me the money," the man directed, displaying a .45-caliber pistol inside his shirt. Dalrymple handed over the contents of a cash register. The robber stuffed the money into the pockets of his work clothing and sped away in an automobile. Dellwood Police Chief Alfred H. Alberda said the robber did not inquire about the contents of a safe.

The Rev. Clarence C. Payne.

Holdup Victim

REV. CLARENCE C. PAYNE

young Presbyterian minister, was bound and gagged by a holdup man in the West End Television Co., 5723 Delmar boulevard, early yesterday, he reported to police. The television shop is operated by the minister's father, Arvid S. Payne, 5802 Westminster place.

The Rev. Mr. Payne told police he had recorded a sermon on a tape recorder and was reading when he heard a crash of glass. He started toward the rear of the building and was accosted by a man armed with a revolver.

"He applied a choke hold, stuffed a gag in my mouth and bound me with wire," the minister said.

After taking between $20 and $30 from a cash register, the robber was searching for additional loot when a passerby rattled the front door. The robber fled out the rear way, where he had gained entrance by breaking a window.

About an hour later the Rev. Mr. Payne worked loose from the bonds and called police. He described the robber as a Negro, about 22 years old, and six feet tall.

The Rev. Mr. Payne, a graduate of Washington University and McCormick Theological Seminary, Chicago, was guest preacher yesterday at West Presbyterian Church, 5872 Maple avenue. Next month he becomes assistant minister at Macalester Presbyterian Church in St. Paul, Minn.

Sanders Snider was robbed of $9 when he walked into his home, 3842 Cottage avenue, at 6 p.m. yesterday and was confronted by a man armed with a revolver. The burglar, who had ransacked the house, demanded additional money and threatened his victim when told there was none. The intruder fled after learning that Snider's wife was at the front door, which he had locked from the inside.

Euel Smithmeyer, 5605 Etzel avenue, was asleep in his automobile behind a tavern at 5101 Delmar boulevard early yesterday when two men tried to cut a wallet out of his trousers pocket. They cut Smithmeyer, who awakened with a cry of pain. The robbers fled without loot. Smithmeyer was treated for a laceration of the hip at City Hospital.

Ernie Childers, 1445 Clara avenue, walking in the $700 block of Easton avenue early yesterday, was robbed of $165 by two youths, he told police. He said one robber threatened him with a chisel. After grabbing his money the pair ran east in Easton avenue.

Police investigating a report early yesterday that a burglar was in the Findlay Co., a hardware store at 1112 North Kings-highway, arrested a man. Police said he admitted he had broken in to steal tools. He was booked as Charles Johnson, 21, living in the 5100 block of Cabanne avenue.

A. CLIFFORD JONES FAVORS FLUORIDATION FOR COUNTY

A Clifford Jones, unopposed candidate for the Republican nomination for St. Louis County Supervisor, said yesterday he is in favor of a proposal to add fluorides to the county's water supply.

Speaking on a program sponsored by the League of Women Voters on Television Station KMOX-TV, Jones said there is "sound medical advice" that fluoridation is desirable. Two of the three candidates for the Democratic nomination for the office, James H. J. Nary and Lee M. Duggan, declined to say outright whether they favor or oppose the controversial proposal.

Both candidates declared the matter should be decided by voters in a referendum. The third candidate for the Democratic nomination, Cyril Clemens, did not discuss the issue. The candidates made their remarks in reply to questions submitted by viewers. The program was the second in a series of four entitled, "Quis the Candidates."

CAR KILLS HORSE; BOY RIDING DOUBLE WITH SISTER IS HURT

An 8-year-old Mehlville boy, Ronald T. Spies, suffered a fractured skull and a broken leg last night when the horse he and his sister were riding was struck by an automobile at Tesson Ferry and Hagemann roads, St. Louis county.

Driver of the car was Mrs. Lottie Hechler, 6411 Blow street, who told police the horse suddenly stepped in front of her northbound machine. The children were riding south toward oncoming traffic. The sister, Madeline, 14, had the reins.

The horse was killed. Ronald and his sister, who was not injured, were taken to St. Louis County Hospital. The children's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell Spies. The horse belonged to the children.

BLAIR TAKING UP MERAMEC BASIN PLAN WITH ARMY

Gov. James T. Blair and Col. Charles B. Schweizer, St. Louis Army district engineer, were to confer at Jefferson City today on a proposed restudy of a long-deferred flood control program for the Meramec river basin.

The Governor requested the conference after a hearing in his office July 1, at which members of the Meramec Basin Corp. sought his aid in reviving the project, in abeyance since 1949.

Before leaving St. Louis, Col. Schweizer said he would make no recommendations to the Governor but would answer questions and outline necessary procedures if the state decided to request the restudy.

Blair commented at the July 1 hearing, after being informed the Army would not proceed without his approval: "This is the silliest thing I have ever heard of—it is their money and their plans."

Much Opposition Voiced. The Corps of Engineers, acting under Congressional authority, completed a $500,000 study of the basin in 1949 and held public hearings in the area, at which much opposition was voiced to the Army proposal for a system of three large dams.

The Army Chief of Engineers ordered the project shelved after Gov. Forrest Smith, taking note of the opposition, formally announced that the state would withhold support.

Col. Schweizer emphasized today that the Corps of Engineers "does not sponsor or sell projects—there must be a demand on the part of the people in the area concerned."

While taking no official position for or against the Meramec-basin project, Col. Schweizer, who was born and reared in St. Louis county, has publicly expressed strong personal feelings in favor of development of the basin.

He told a civic group recently: "The U.S. Army Engineers will not gain or lose one cent from what is done in the Meramec valley. I do not think, however, as a Missourian, that we are doing ourselves and our children a disservice by further delaying the development of this river."

"Very Scarce Commodity." He said to another group: "The longer the development of this area is delayed, the more probable the failure of any plan. Industrial and community development in the area may make the erection of any form of dam, big or little, so costly that it cannot be undertaken."

"Water is becoming a very scarce commodity in this country. The uses being made by industry and communities for water far exceed those of even 20 years ago. The growth of our population indicates that we will have to be more and more concerned with the conservation of water. I know of no area near St. Louis which has the possibilities for storage of water which the Meramec has."

The three dams proposed in the 1949 program would create reservoirs on the Meramec river at Meramec State Park, four miles east of Sullivan; on the Bourbeuse river about six miles east of Union and on the Big river two miles upstream from Cedar Hill. The sites are, respectively, 65, 50 and 30 miles by highway from St. Louis.

$150,000 Aid Proposed. The Meramec Basin Corp., St. Louis Chamber of Commerce and other groups propose that Congress be asked to appropriate $150,000 for restudy of the 1949 plans, which the engineers consider basically valid.

Restudy would be to insure conformance with the latest developments in design, re-evaluate cost estimates and benefit studies, take advantage of flow records and hydraulic data for the last 10 years and consider changes in water requirements for communities and industries and for pollution abatement.

Basic federal interest in flood control on the Meramec is to reduce flood stages on the Mississippi river and, in time of low water, to help maintain a navigation channel in that river.

Collateral benefits cited by the engineers would be flood control on the Meramec itself, water supply, stream pollution abatement, recreation and fish and wildlife conservation.

DISMISSAL OF SCOTT PAPER FTC CASE RECOMMENDED

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—A Federal Trade Commission examiner yesterday recommended dismissal of charges that Scott Paper Co., Chester, Pa., violated anti-trust laws by acquiring between 1951 and 1954.

Examiner William L. Pack granted Scott's motion for dismissal after hearing evidence in support of FTC's complaints of June 1, 1956. Pack's order is not a final decision of the commission. It may be appealed, stayed or reviewed.

Scott's acquisitions challenged by the commission were: Soundview Pulp Co., Everett, Wash., in 1951; Detroit Sulphite Pulp and Paper Co., Detroit, in 1954; and Hollingsworth & Whitney Co., Boston, also in 1954. Pack held that Scott, while a leader in the industry, is not dominant. He said none of the three firms acquired was a competitor of Scott.

Tito-Nasser Picnic. PULA, Yugoslavia, July 14 (AP)—Presidents Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic and Josip (Tito) Broz of Yugoslavia took their wives and Nasser's children on a picnic yesterday on the island of Vanga in the Adriatic sea. Nasser, who has been visiting Tito since July 2, is expected to leave tomorrow.

6 DROWN WHEN THROWN FROM BOAT ON LAKE

STUTTGART, Ark., July 14 (AP)—Six persons, including three children, drowned yesterday on a fishing outing by two families.

Sheriff Harold Woodson said they were thrown from their 14-foot wooden boat when the craft struck a log on Benson lake, about 12 miles south of here. Only a woman survived.

The sheriff identified the dead as David Imler, 44 years old; his wife, about 40; their two daughters, about 3 and 5; Otis Henry, 45, and his son, 5. Both families lived in Pine Bluff.

Mrs. Henry, 38, was pulled out of the water alive about an hour and a half after the accident and hospitalized here. Her condition was not serious.

Woodson said the boat, powered by a small outboard motor, did not capsize and a dog was found unharmed on a seat of the craft.

TORNADO NEAR NEVADA, MO.

NEVADA, Mo., July 14 (AP)—A tornado skirted Nevada shortly after 9 o'clock last night, but caused little damage. The twister dipped to the ground on the farms of Joe Welborn and Eddie Watson.

five miles west of here. It tore up some trees and shrubbery and ripped the front off a shed. Ten minutes later, the funnel passed over the farm of Roy Gregg a mile northeast of Nevada, breaking power lines but causing no other damage.

SUEZ COMPENSATION AGREEMENT SIGNED

GENEVA, July 14—A final agreement was signed yesterday on compensation to be paid by the United Arab Republic to shareholders of the Universal Suez Canal Company.

The canal was nationalized by Egypt July 26, 1956. The United Arab Republic, formed in a subsequent merger of Egypt and Syria, undertook to pay 23,000,000 Egyptian pounds ($4,800,000)—to the company in five installments of 4,000,000 Egyptian pounds, plus a final payment of 3,000,000 pounds. Payment is to be made in British pounds sterling or French francs.

In addition, the company will keep $15,219,000 in canal fees collected outside Egypt since the canal was nationalized. The United Arab Republic also recognized the company's right to retain its assets outside Egypt.

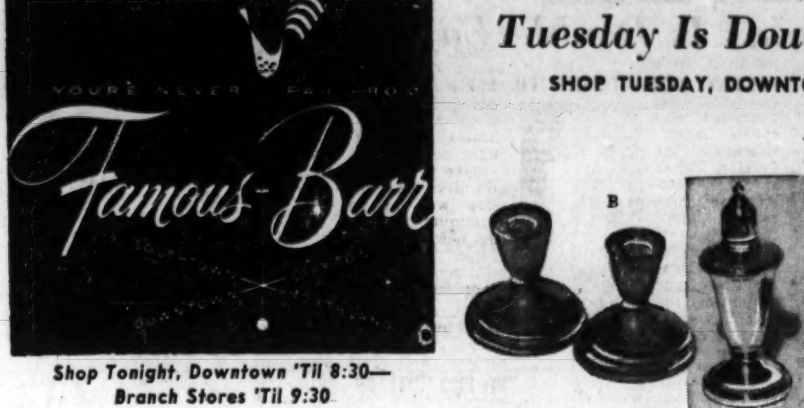

The company will remain in existence, although the name will be changed to the Suez Financial Company. It is known to be interested in the construction of a tunnel under the English channel.

Originally the agreement was to have been signed in Geneva Saturday, but negotiations broke down over interpretation of a clause intended to guarantee the company shareholders against devaluation of the currencies involved.

Company representatives held that the clause guaranteed against devaluation of all three currencies in relation to the United States dollar. The currencies are Egyptian pounds, sterling and French francs.

Watermelon Season Here--Make the Most of It

By DOROTHY BRAINERD
Post-Dispatch Food Editor.

THINK HARD, NOW—do you know anyone who doesn't like watermelon? Anyone at all? If so, that person definitely is a member of a minority group. Melons of all kinds rate high in popularity, a fact which is not surprising when one considers their subtle flavors, their pretty pastel colors, and most of all their wonderfully cool, refreshing textures when they come to the table properly chilled.

Probably the best liked member of the whole melon family is the watermelon, and no doubt much of this popularity can be attributed to a touch of nostalgia. The very sight of red-ripe watermelon conjures up memories of happy times in the past—of wayside picnics and impromptu parties. The sophisticated adult, enjoying watermelon neatly scooped into balls then served in the grand manner in a crystal dish nestled in a bowl of crushed ice, subconsciously remembers childhood "watermelon parties" when slices of the juicy melon were grasped firmly in both hands and eaten without benefit of knife or spoon.

Although watermelon seems as American as popcorn, its cultivation was recorded thousands of years before this continent's discovery. Ancient Egyptian art shows the melon and it is mentioned by its Hebrew name, "abbatichim," in accounts of the Hebrew exodus from Egypt.

It is said that the famous missionary-explorer, Dr. David Livingston, cleared up the mystery of the watermelon's birthplace when he found vast tracts of the melons growing wild in central Africa. The melon reached central Europe near the beginning of the Christian Era and centuries later European colonists brought it to America. It had become common in Massachusetts by the early seventeenth century, and now it is a favorite in every state from coast to coast.

But for all its folksiness, the melon can do party dress and feel quite at home in the most plush surroundings. Consider, for example, Molded Watermelon Fresh Fruit Salad in which melon balls, diced peaches, fresh blueberries and fresh mint leaves are encased in a delectable, shimmering foam.

Muskmelon Jubilee Time

By Clementine Paddleford.
The New York Herald Tribune Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch.

NOW IS THE MUSKMELON family's big get together. Muskmelon is the proper name for that group of melons we call cantaloupe, honeydew, honeyball, Casaba, Cranshaw, the Persian. This is an old, old family, stemming back to before the time of Moses, back to Persia, to Iran, the first large center of the melon's cultivation.

Muskmelon traveled vagabond fashion from Persia to the shores of the Mediterranean. In Italy it acquired a new name "cantaloupe" from the Castle Cantalupo where melons were first grown commercially.

Cantaloupe production started very early in the new world as Columbus found the melons on Isabella Island on his return from his second voyage in 1494. In 1535 Cartier noted the Indians growing muskmelons in Montreal and one Lopez de Gormara mentions finding them in New Mexico in 1540. One taste and the Indians took to the muskmelon.

Pick a Winner.
A melon is an uncertain proposition and always has been, according to Sturdevant's "Notes on Edible Plants." Herera, a Spanish writer wrote in 1513 "If the melon is good, it is the best fruit that exists and none other is preferable to it; if it is bad, it is a bad thing." Times haven't changed much.

A ready-to-eat cantaloupe will have a coarse netting well defined and the rind showing through may be a lighter green or have a grayish or yellow tinge.

The scar at the stem should be slightly sunken and calloused, proof that it was harvested at the stage called "full slip" when the fruit separated readily from the vine. A cantaloupe heavy for its size indicates more meat and greater sugar content.

Make your choice, then wash and dry the cantaloupe and wrap well in waxed paper, aluminum foil, or in plastic bag before storing in refrigerator. Otherwise the melon's rich aroma will mingle with other foods.

You can ripen melons at room temperature for several days if not too immature when picked. Soft spots on melons do not affect the flavor but decayed spots do. So before storing any decayed areas should be removed.

Store frozen melon balls as you would other frozen fruits. Thaw the frozen melon in the refrigerator or at room temperature. Remember frozen melon should be served only partly thawed. When thawed completely the flesh will be mushy or rubbery in texture.

Keep It Simple.

Chilled melon is the simplest, the quickest to prepare on desserts. And so cool, so pretty to look upon. The melons' flesh is in pastel shades of soft pink, green, orange, a creamy yellow, according to your choice. It is but gilding the lily to embellish the first melons of the spring. Just cut and serve in the natural state.

As summer advances the initial novelty becomes the old familiarity; then it's time to dress them up a bit. Chilled half cantaloupes may be filled with other summer fruits: Pitted cherries, frozen pineapple chunks, sliced peaches, blueberries, banana slices, orange segments—a sprig of green mint for the decoration. Fill the cantaloupe center with a dip of ice cream or with small molded balls of fruit-flavored sherbet.

Or as a first course pile balls of the golden cantaloupe and pale green honeydew into sherbet glass and pour in chilled ginger ale right to the rim. Add a subtle flavor to the melon cocktail; use Port or Sauterne.

Melons in fruit salads give color and exotic flavor. A melon ring salad is easily made: fill ring with cottage cheese and garnish with fresh berries. Melon slices added with other fruits and arranged on a great platter make a novel breakfast first course for a Sunday brunch. Pass with a rum and maple syrup dressing; let each guest help himself.

Melon A La Rh.
One and one-third cups water.

One teaspoon salt.

Two-thirds cup uncooked white rice.

One and one-half cups milk.

Three-fourth cup sugar.

One teaspoon vanilla.

Chilled cantaloupe or other melon.

One cup ready-to-eat crisp high protein cereal, crushed.

One-half teaspoon cinnamon.

Put the water, salt and rice in a two-quart saucepan. Bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat down low. Cover with a lid. Simmer over this low heat 14 minutes.

Remove the saucepan from the heat but leave the lid on 10 minutes. Stir in the milk. Cover and simmer about 15 minutes or until the milk is absorbed. Stir occasionally. Do not boil.

Cool the rice. While still warm, stir in the sugar and vanilla. Cover and chill in refrigerator.

To serve: mound a liberal amount of the cold rice in the center of the serving of melon. Melon may be cut in halves or quartered as desired. Mix the cereal crumbs and cinnamon.

Fluted Melon Berry Cup

To make this handsome fluted melon berry cup, cut chilled cantaloupe in half, using zigzag motion to make a "frill." Remove seeds; fill with summer berries, any kind in season. Top with a scoop of frosty sherbet if desired.

Muskmelons

Sprinkle a liberal amount over the rice mixture.

Yield: enough filling for six to eight servings.

Cantaloupe Pie.

Two medium cantaloupes.

Three tablespoons unflavored gelatin.

One-half cup water.

One-half cup sugar.

Juice and grated rind of one orange.

One nine-inch crumb pie shell.

One-half package lemon flavored gelatin.

One cup water.

Remove pulp and juice from cantaloupe and press through a potato ricer. Bring to a boil.

Soften gelatin in one-half cup water and dissolve over boiling water; add to cantaloupe mixture with sugar. Cool until slightly thickened and add orange juice and rind and turn into pie shell. Let stand until firm.

Top with meringue of lemon jelly, made by dissolving lemon gelatin in one cup water according to package directions. When almost set, beat until light and frothy. Heap on top of pie and let stand until cold.

Yield: six servings.

Cantaloupe Sherbet.

One cup sugar.

One and one-half cups water.

One tablespoon unflavored gelatin.

One-fourth cup cold water.

Two tablespoons lemon juice.

Two cups cantaloupe pulp.

One-eighth teaspoon salt.

One-eighth teaspoon nutmeg.

One cup heavy cream.

Two tablespoons confectioners' sugar.

Make a sirup of the sugar and water by boiling together for eight minutes. Soften gelatin in cold water, add to hot sirup and stir until dissolved. Let cool, add lemon juice, the melon which has been passed through a sieve, salt and nutmeg.

Place mixture in freezing tray of automatic refrigerator with temperature control set at coldest point and allow to freeze to a mush.

Whip the cream until it begins to hold its shape then beat in confectioners' sugar carefully. Stir the sherbet well, fold in the cream and freeze to desired consistency, two to four hours.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

Melon Ring.

One and one-half medium-sized cantaloupes.

Three cups white grapes, halved and seeded.

Water cream.

Three-fourths cup fruit French dressing.

Cut ends from melon, then cut into six equal rings. Remove seeds and rind. Prepare grapes and chill in refrigerator, with melon slices.

At serving time, place melon rings on water cream on six individual salad plates. Fill center of each ring with grapes. Serve with dressing.

Watermelon

Three - fourths cup cold water.

Four cups diced watermelon.

One-half cup sugar.

Six tablespoons fresh lemon juice.

One-fourth teaspoon salt.

One cup small cantaloupe balls.

One cup diced fresh oranges or peaches.

One-half cup fresh blueberries or strawberries.

Salad greens or fresh mint.

Watermelon or cantaloupe balls for garnish.

Mayonnaise.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Place over hot (not boiling) water to melt and until ready to use. Rub watermelon through a sieve. Measure juice (there should be three cups).

Add sugar, lemon juice and salt. Mix well. Chill until the mixture begins to thicken, about as thick as fresh egg whites.

Fold in fruits. Turn into a six-cup mold which has been rinsed in cold water. Chill until ready to serve and until firm.

Unmold onto a large serving dish. Garnish with salad greens or fresh mint and watermelon or cantaloupe balls. Serve with mayonnaise.

Yield: Eight to 10 servings.

For a cool drink to quench thirst on a warm day, try this: Watermelon Fresh Fruit Punch.

Six cups diced watermelon.

Two-thirds cup fresh lime juice.

Two-thirds cup fresh lemon juice.

Three-fourths cup sugar.

One cup fresh orange juice.

One-fourth teaspoon salt.

Combine first four ingredients. Refrigerate one or more hours. Rub mixture through a sieve. Add orange juice and salt. Serve over ice cubes.

Yield: Five cups.

A fruit cup in tune with summer is this one in molded form.

Molded Watermelon Fruit Cup.

Two envelopes unflavored gelatin.

One-half cup cold water.

Four cups diced watermelon.

Two-thirds cup sugar.

One and one-half tablespoons fresh lime juice.

One-eighth teaspoon salt.

One-half cup fresh blueberries.

One-half cup sliced fresh strawberries.

One-half cup sliced fresh peaches.

Fresh mint leaves (optional).

Fresh watermelon balls.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Place over hot (not boiling) water to melt and until ready to use. Rub watermelon through a sieve. Measure the juice (there should be two and one-half cups).

Add sugar, lime juice, salt and melted gelatin. Mix well. Chill until the mixture begins to thicken, about as thick as

This Crab Sandwich

Served sizzling hot from the broiler, this crab sandwich would be just right for Sunday supper.

It is easily prepared; just mix a little instant onion with lime juice, add the other ingredients and spread the mixture on bread. "Frost" with mayonnaise and cheese and broil until the sandwich is bubbly and exudes a savory fragrance.

Broiled Crab Sandwich.

Two teaspoons instant minced or two tablespoons finely chopped raw onion.

One tablespoon lime or lemon juice.

One-half teaspoon worcestershire sauce.

One and one-half cups (or 6 1/2-ounce can) crab meat.

Five or six slices toast.

One-half cup mayonnaise.

'Broiler Special'

One-quarter cup grated American cheese.

Measure onion into lime juice; let stand five minutes. Combine with chili and worcestershire sauces and crab. Spread on toast.

Blend mayonnaise and cheese and "frost" each open sandwich. Place under broiler until topping is hot and bubbly. Serve at once.

Yield: Five or six servings.

Orange Relish

Peel and cut two or three oranges into medium-thick slices (do this over a bowl to catch juice).

Add a tablespoon each sugar, wine vinegar and instant minced onion; chill for several hours. Serve as a refreshing relish to accompany baked ham or roast chicken.

Tuna Loaf From California

From California comes this recipe for a hearty tuna loaf. It makes an interesting change from the more customary tuna casserole. There is whole kernel corn in the loaf, which is served with egg or tomato sauce.

California Tuna Loaf.
One cup cracker crumbs.
One cup milk.
Two eggs.
One cup flaked tuna.
One-half cup chopped ripe olives.
One cup drained, whole kernel corn.
One-half teaspoon salt.
Pepper.
Egg or tomato sauce.
Combine crumbs and milk, and heat to boiling. Cook and stir about one minute. Remove from heat and beat in eggs, one at a time.
Stir in tuna, olives, corn, salt and pepper to taste.
Pour into greased loaf pan or casserole. Place in shallow pan of water. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees) one hour and 15 minutes or until set.
Serve immediately with egg or tomato sauce.
Yield: Four to six servings.

Barbecue Geared to 'Gracious Living'

Here is a barbecue for those who have an epicurean taste in foods, even for out-of-door meals. Lamb chops are marinated in a wine and herb mixture, served with a tossed salad and a piping hot casserole.

Fresh mint leaves for garnish.
Soften gelatine in cold water. Steep mint leaves in boiling water. Strain and pour over softened gelatine. Stir to dissolve gelatine. Blend in lime juice, sugar, salt and green food coloring. Turn into each quart ring mold. Chill until firm and ready to serve. Unmold on serving plate and fill center with watermelon balls. Garnish with fresh mint leaves.
Yield: six to eight servings.

First Course For Dinner Party

Golden Fruit Cocktail is the perfect introduction to a party dinner. Use two or three varieties of melons. Cut the melons in balls. (You will need one quart of melon balls.)
Combine with one can (No. 2) of pineapple chunks.
Make a ginger sauce of one cup of sugar, one-fourth cup of white corn sirup, one-half cup of drained pineapple sirup and two tablespoons of grated ginger. Cook sauce about six minutes.
Cool and add two tablespoons lime or lemon juice. Marinate the fruit in the ginger sauce.
Serve in sherbet glasses, or if preferred, in halves of small cantaloupes with a garnish of mint.
Yield: six to eight servings.

Pizza Virginia

Ever think of Pizza as a way to use leftovers? It's an idea worth trying the next time you have some cooked chicken and ham on hand.
Start with one package pizza mix. Prepare dough as directed on package. Let rise, then pat out into an oiled 12-inch pizza pan or two nine-inch pie plates. Spread with pizza sauce. Sprinkle with one small green pepper (cut in strips) or two canned tomatoes and two scallops, sliced thin, including some of the green tops.
Then add three-fourths cup diced cooked chicken and one-half cup ham, diced or cut in strips, and top with one-fourth pound Muenster or American cheese, sliced thin.
Bake in a hot oven of 425 degrees for 25 minutes, or until crust is brown and cheese melted.

Wine Marinade Delicious For Lamb Chops

Some folks like to "rough it" on a picnic; others prefer their out-of-door living restricted to a grill on a terrace and a menu such as this one.
One of the best ways of achieving superb flavor in meat is to marinate it in a wine and herb mixture, then baste the meat as it broils with the marinade. This wine marinade for lamb makes a lamb chop a delectable dish. Brush on the sauce or drizzle it from a pitcher. Heat a crusty loaf of bread on the back of the grill, toss a big salad, and bring on a piping hot casserole of your choice. Serve glasses of the same chilled wine that is used to baste the chops.
Yield: enough marinade for six to eight large chops.

Wine Marinade for Lamb.
One cup sauterne or other white table wine.
Two tablespoons wine vinegar.
Two teaspoons dried tarragon.
One-half teaspoon garlic salt.
One-fourth teaspoon powdered thyme.
One-fourth teaspoon powdered rosemary.
Dash cayenne pepper.

Caribbean Chicken

On the sunny islands in the Caribbean, chicken and rice are prepared in as many different ways as there are cooks. Each has his own "pinch of this," "bit of that" recipe. This recipe is an easy one with sliced olives and paprika to add that special touch.

Caribbean Calypso Chicken.
Five tablespoons cooking fat.
One and one-half cups chopped onions.
One large clove garlic, minced.
One ready-to-cook young chicken, two and one-half to three and one-half pounds, cut up.
Two cups water.
Three-fourths cup uncooked white rice.
Two and one-half teaspoons salt.
One-fourth teaspoon black pepper.
Two tablespoons paprika.
One-third cup sliced stuffed green olives.
One and one-half to two cups canned or cooked green peas, not seasoned.
Place three tablespoons of the cooking fat in a large skillet or Dutch oven. Add the onions and garlic. Cook slowly until onions begin to brown, about 15 minutes. Remove onions and garlic from skillet. Add the remaining two tablespoons of fat and the chicken. Brown the chicken well on all sides. Pour in about one-half cup of water.
Mix together the onions and rice. Arrange under the chicken. Add the salt, pepper, paprika and the rest of the water. Cover and simmer about 35 minutes or until the rice is tender.

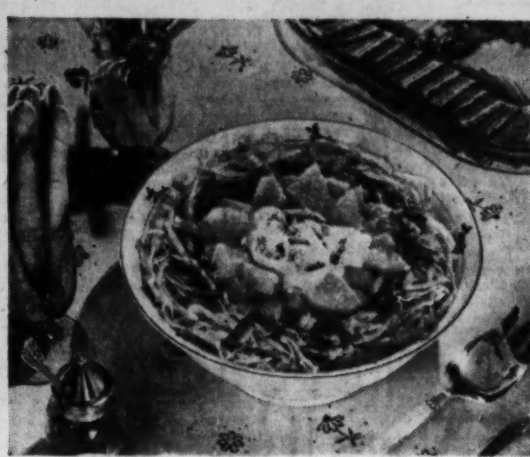

Halfway through the cooking time, stir gently to mix uncooked rice into the water. Add a small amount of water if the mixture cooks dry.
When the rice is tender, add the olives and peas. Cover and heat several minutes. Uncooked peas may be placed over the chicken when the rice and onions are added. However, the peas are not as perfect in appearance. Since a young chicken is used in this recipe, it should cook tender in approximately 35 minutes.
Yield: Five to six servings.

Winner

Mrs. Ray Dougherty, 2937 Kincaid ave., St. John's, has been awarded first prize in a weekly jingle contest sponsored by the Rival Dog Food Co. Gordon Pilkington, president of Pilkington Brokerage Co., presented the prize of $1700 in food certificates to Mrs. Dougherty at Rapp's Supermarket, 8707 St. Charles Rock Road. She won the award for the sixth week's contest, after having entered each of the previous five weeks.

Paper Containers

Make yours a "throw-away" picnic after the eating is over through the use of paper containers, cups, plates and napkins which minimize the clean-up chore.
Light and easy to carry, paper quart or pint-size containers are ideal for carrying salads, pickles, relishes, cut-up fruits or any food item which needs protection.

New Version of Coleslaw

Perhaps you like coleslaw with a dash of celery seed, or grated carrot, or slivers of green pepper but for variety try adding bite-size pieces of oranges.
A far cry from the original Dutch version of "koolsla," this salad has an unusual dressing made from a bacon and horseradish neuschatel cheese spread, fresh lemon juice and milk or cream. Topped off with freshly ground black pepper, it is a smooth summer accompaniment for picnics or back yard dinners.
Savory Cheese Coleslaw.
One (four-ounce) carton pasteurized neuschatel cheese spread, (bacon and horseradish or onion soup flavor).
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-fourth teaspoon onion salt.
One tablespoon fresh lemon juice.
One to two tablespoons milk or cream.
Four cups cabbage, finely shredded.
One-third cup green pepper, shredded.
Two cups oranges, cut into bite-size pieces (two or three medium oranges).
Sprinkle of paprika.
Cream the pasteurized neuschatel cheese spread until softened; add the salt, fresh lemon juice and enough milk or cream to moisten to stirring consistency.
Combine cheese dressing with cabbage and green pepper. Fold in the orange pieces lightly.
Arrange on salad plates on lettuce leaf or serve from large salad bowl. Sprinkle with paprika.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

To warm bread or rolls, place them in a pan or wrap in foil and set at side of grill where heat is not too intense.

Turn once or twice for even heating. Little heat passes over the top of the pan or package.

ST. LOUIS YOUTHS
DROWN IN ARKANSAS

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

HOXIE, Ark., July 14—Robert O. Yarbrough and Bobby Gene Ferguson, St. Louis area youths who arrived here last Friday for a farm vacation, drowned Saturday in a stock pond, one trying to save the other.

Yarbrough, 18 years old, lived at 1615 Dolman street, St. Louis. Ferguson, who is survived by his wife and 1-year-old daughter, lived at 2301 South Broadway, St. Louis. Both were welders at St. Louis Shipbuilding & Steel Co.

The sheriff's office reported that Yarbrough, who could not swim, waded into the pond and stepped into a deep hole. Ferguson answered his cry for help, and both disappeared in the muddy water.

The pond is about two miles from the farm of Ferguson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maxie Ferguson. Yarbrough is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Yarbrough, of the St. Louis address, and brother and sister.

Funeral services were to be held here today for Ferguson. Funeral services also were to be held today for Yarbrough, at Ironton, Mo.

Another attempt to fire the $2,000,000 missile, fully powered for the first time, is expected sometime this week.

ELECTRONIC PART FAILURE
PREVENTS I.C.B.M. FIRING

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla., July 14 (AP)—The launching of an Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile was postponed Saturday because an electronic part failed at the last second, it was learned today. A source close to the I.C.B.M. program indicated that the trouble was minor.

Another attempt to fire the $2,000,000 missile, fully powered for the first time, is expected sometime this week.

WAYNE B. WRIGHT
HEADS ST. LOUIS BAR

Wayne B. Wright, a member of the law firm of McDonald & Wright, today was elected president of the Bar Association of St. Louis. He succeeds Henry C. M. Lankin, who died June 24.

Wright, 39 years old, was elected unanimously at a luncheon meeting attended by about 100 members of the association. He was a candidate in the election last May at which Lankin was chosen president.

A 1941 graduate of Washington University Law School, Wright served in the Pacific as an anti-aircraft officer in World War II. He is married, has two sons and lives at 405 Fairwood lane, Kirkwood.

Lankin, 49 years old, died following a heart attack suffered at his office. He was a member of the law firm of Cobbs, Armstrong, Teasdale & Roos, and lived at 6224 Waterman boulevard.

$25,000 PAID FOR OPTION
ON COLUMBIA BOTTOMS

A $25,000 check was presented to Mayor Raymond R. Tucker today by the Industrial Park Corp. in payment for a three-year option on the city's land at Columbia Bottoms. The option provides for purchase of the 400-acre tract at the appraised price of $1,230,000.

The Industrial Park Corp. was organized last October by the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis as a non-profit agency to develop an industrial district at the confluence of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers. Clark Hungerford is president and Kenton R. Cravens is executive vice president.

The chamber is seeking to raise a $500,000 promotion fund to be used in advertising the proposed development and lining up prospective tenants. It plans to develop rail, highway and dock facilities behind a flood wall, then employ the Missouri-Illinois Bi-State Agency to operate the industrial district.

F. B. MERGET NAMED
PRESIDENT OF BANK

Frank B. Merget has been appointed president of the Mercantile-Commerce National Bank, 3612 Washington boulevard, effective Aug. 1, it was announced today. He is to succeed Gale F. Johnston, who is retiring.

Merget has been executive vice president of the bank since January 1954, and for three years before that he was vice president and secretary. He came here from De Soto, Mo., in 1921 and began his banking career with the Scruggs Vandervoort Barney Bank, which went out of business in the 1930s.

He joined Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. in 1934, and the following year moved to his present bank as manager of the safe deposit department. He joined the commercial division in 1940, became assistant cashier two

E. ST. LOUIS CAFE HELD UP

Mrs. Mary Broderick, waitress at Carl's Grill, 349 East Broadway, East St. Louis, was robbed of $24 yesterday by an armed man, she reported to police.

Mrs. Broderick said the man entered the restaurant, looked around and then walked out. He returned a short time later, displayed a pistol and demanded money. After taking the money from a cash register he forced Mrs. Broderick into a rear room. There were no customers in the establishment at the time.

WE HAVE THE ECONOMICALLY OPERATED

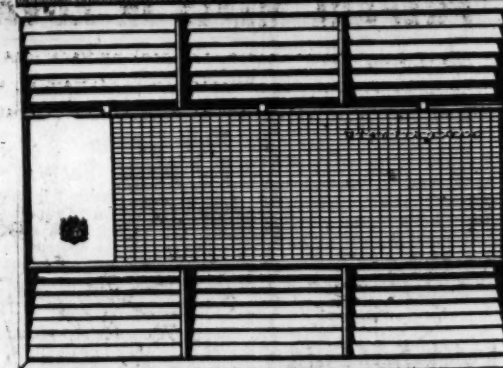

FRIEDRICH ROOM AIR CONDITIONER

FRIEDRICH ACTUALLY PAYS FOR ITSELF BY SAVING
YOU UP TO $12.00 A MONTH IN ELECTRICITY!

3/4 H.P. 9,000 B.T.U.

1 H.P. 11,700 B.T.U.

1 1/2 H.P. 17,200 B.T.U.

HAS FALSE AND MISLEADING ADVERTISING CONFUSED YOU ABOUT ROOM AIR CONDITIONERS?

WHAT IS A B.T.U.? A B.T.U. is short for British Thermal Unit, the scientific method of measuring heat. B.T.U.s in air conditioning is the amount of heat the unit will remove from the conditioned area. IF the unit's capacity is tested and rated under A.R.I. (Air Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute) standard 110-58. Insist on seeing specifications data.—Don't take a salesman's figure.

WHAT IS A "TON"? A Ton is the amount of heat it takes to melt a ton of ice in 24 hours. It takes 144 B.T.U.s to reduce one pound of ice to water. It takes 12,000 B.T.U.s per hour to melt a ton of ice in 24 hours. Usually 1 H.P. Air Conditioners are advertised as a "1 Ton" unit even though their capacities as filed with A.R.I. and National Better Business Bureau may be less than 6,000 B.T.U.s—Less than half a ton. Friedrich's 1 H.P. unit is certified by Independent Testing Laboratories as 11,700 B.T.U.—A.R.I. 110-58.

COST OF OPERATION—Is determined by B.T.U.s per watt of electrical current used per hour—Friedrich produces OVER 8.3 B.T.U.s PER WATT while numerous highly nationally advertised brands produce LESS THAN 6.0 B.T.U.s PER WATT. Same so-called "1-Ton Units" use well over the wattage consumption of a 1 1/2 H.P. FRIEDRICH which produces more B.T.U.s than other 2 H.P. brands.

BIG INCREASE IN U.S. MEDICAL RESEARCH URGED

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch
Special Dispatch

WASHINGTON, July 14—A group of special government advisers reported yesterday that the nation's medical research program should be tripled to almost one billion dollars a year by 1970, with half of the money coming from the Federal Government.

To provide research scientists and physicians for the program, and for the country as a whole, the consultants urged construction of between 14 and 20 new medical schools. These would cost between $500,000,000 and one billion dollars more, with much support from "large Federal appropriations."

In its final report to Marion B. Folsom, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, the advisory committee said the cost of programs of research and education are "in the national interest." They "should not be restricted by lack of funds."

"The fruits of medical research will be further prolongation of life and relief of suffering," the report added. "A by-product of medical research will be a marked increase in the physical and mental capability of the population."

The committee was composed of prominent medical researchers and educators, led by Dr. Stanhope Bayne-Jones, former dean of the Yale Medical School. Folsom appointed the committee a year ago to advise him on the long-term needs in medical research and education.

The committee said it considered its cost estimates of $900,000,000 to one billion dollars for the research program in 1970 "conservative" figures. It arrived at them by projecting current trends.

The Federal Government spent $186,000,000 last year for medical research.

Non-government research funds last year totalled $144,000,000. Industry's portion was $90,000,000, private philanthropy contributed $35,000,000, and income from endowments made up the remaining $19,000,000, the report estimated.

TRANS-TEXAS AIRWAYS SEEKS TO SERVE ST. LOUIS

Three daily round trip flights between St. Louis and eight Arkansas cities will be proposed by Trans-Texas Airways at a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing which starts tomorrow at Topeka, Kan.

L. J. Eichner, vice president for traffic and sales for the airline, said the service would be provided by extending the line's present flights from Little Rock by way of Jonesboro, Ark., and Cape Girardeau, Mo. There are 168 business firms with offices in both St. Louis and Little Rock, 32 in both St. Louis and Jonesboro and 28 in both St. Louis and El Dorado, he said.

Proposed departures from St. Louis would be at 7:45 a.m., noon and 5:30 p.m., and arrivals here would be at 10:17 a.m., 12:36 p.m. and 9:27 p.m. One flight to Little Rock would be non-stop, with a schedule of one hour and 36 minutes. Trans-Texas Airways does not presently serve St. Louis.

100 EMPLOYEES ESCAPE WHEN STORE ROOF FALLS

TAMPA, Fla., July 14 (AP)—The roof of a department store collapsed in a violent thunder storm yesterday as 100 employees taking inventory hurried to safety. There were no injuries.

City Building Inspector John Roker said indications were the steel-supported roof had been struck by lightning. Some employees reported seeing a ball of fire.

Much of the merchandise in the one story, block square building was soaked by water. Other nearby buildings were damaged by high winds which tore down signs and ripped awnings.

CLIMBER KILLED BY ROCK

SALEM, Ore., July 14 (AP)—A rolling rock sent a young mountain climber to his death yesterday on the slopes of Mt. Jefferson, 70 miles east of Salem.

Robert Traman of Scio, Ore., was struck on the head by the rock. He lost his footing on Jefferson Park Glacier, on the west side of the 10,495-foot peak, and fell several hundred feet.

OPERATION ALERT IN FINAL PHASES, 4500 TAKING PART

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—Nearly 4500 federal workers today began the final phases of Operation Alert 1958, the government's annual civilian defense and mobilization drill. They are stationed in field offices of 38 federal agencies across the nation. On Wednesday another 4500 key officials of Washington headquarters of the Agencies will take up emergency duties in secret relocation centers in nearby states.

The White House has not disclosed whether President Eisenhower will leave Washington for an emergency White House as he has in past years. A spokesman for the Office of Defense and Civilian Mobilization, which planned the exercise, said that Cabinet officers are not expected to join the exodus this year.

Operation Alert will be less dramatic than in recent years because the five-day exercise will start on an assumed "D plus 14"—the fourteenth day after a hypothetical enemy attack has smashed American industrial and military centers.

Library Association Head.
SAN FRANCISCO, July 14 (AP)—Election of Benjamin E. Powell, librarian at Duke University, to head the American Library Association in 1959 was announced yesterday as the association opened its seventy-seventh annual conference. Powell was chosen by mail ballot among 20,000 members.

Santa Barbara Earthquake.
SANTA BARBARA, Calif., July 14 (AP)—A sharp earthquake jolted Santa Barbara and vicinity at 10:27 p.m. yesterday. It lasted about six seconds and was followed by several lesser shocks. There were no reports of damage or injury.

Only NEW GULF CREST gives you such true economy ... for the life of your car

This is an Abacus—an ancient oriental device for counting money. New Gulf Crest is the modern way to save money.

You save gasoline because Gulf Crest protects against formation of deposits that glow, cause misfiring, waste gasoline. Can even cure engines already suffering from such deposits—and often within two tankfuls!

You save dollars on upkeep because Gulf Crest keeps your engine clean—protects against too frequent spark plug replacement and other costly engine servicing.

You enjoy more usable power because Gulf Crest protects your car against power-robbing engine knock and engine roughness. That's why Gulf Crest gives you the maximum, thrifty power that comes from peak performance—even in the hottest '58 engines.

Prove it in your own car: Gulf Crest packs more knockproof power—protects your engine more completely—gives you more lasting economy than any other gasoline you can buy.

Iraq Coup Expected to End Present U.S. Policy; Nasser Likely to Win All of Arab World

State Department Caught by Surprise — Experts Say West Must Aid Arab Nationalism or See Middle East Go to Communist Camp.

By Brig. Gen. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 14. THE REVOLUTION IN IRAQ, led by young army officers in sympathy with Egyptian President Abdel Gamal Nasser, former revolutionary colonel, is reported to have surprised and shocked the State Department.

Few real Middle Eastern experts were surprised. They knew that popular sentiment in Iraq was pro-Nasser and violently in favor of Arab nationalism. The Post-Dispatch was told in Baghdad a year ago from both high and low Iraqi sources that as soon as the strong-man, Prime Minister Nuri Said, died, or resigned, Iraq would withdraw from the Baghdad Pact and co-operate with Nasser.

For the United States, Britain and other Western states, the revolt in Iraq, if it is successful, means the end of current United States policy in the Arab world, say Middle East experts. This policy has split Iraq, Jordan and Lebanon from the other Arab states. If the revolutionary elements remain in power and join Nasser's United Arab Republic, Western policy will have to be revised, say the experts, to co-operation with and help for the aspirations of Arab nationalism. Otherwise, the Arabs will turn to the Soviet Union.

For Nasser, the revolt is a giant's stride toward the aims he announced (like Hitler in "Mein Kampf") in his book "The Philosophy of the Revolution." The Arab world, he wrote, is the first circle in which Arab power is to be exercised, "in which we must revolve and attempt to move as much as we possibly can."

In this circle "we can consider ourselves, therefore, powerful, when we sit calm and count in figures of petroleum production and reserves) our capacity, powerful in our thorough understanding of the strength of this bond which links us and makes our territory one."

His Eye on Oil. Nasser has had his eye on the Arab petroleum reserves from the beginning. He never mentioned publicly that he coveted Iraq and Saudi Arabian oil, but he has referred to Kuwait, the little Arab sheikdom, covering only 8,000 square miles and with a population of 205,000, which sits on top of the largest pool of oil in the world.

Kuwait produces more petroleum than any other Middle Eastern state, more than Saudi Arabia, than Iraq, than Iran. Its revenues from oil are about $300,000,000 annually. Iraqi Prime Minister Nuri Said demanded in London, recently, that Kuwait be joined to Iraq, evidently hoping to thwart Nasser's bid. The British announced they favored the union.

However, Nuri Said had not merely asked for help to retake Kuwait, he had demanded that the British arrange to make it a part of Iraq and threatened, unless they did, to pull Iraq out of the Baghdad Pact. The imminence of a union of Iraq and Kuwait may have determined the timing of the pro-Nasser army to revolt in Iraq.

Rest Likely to Fall. If the new rulers in Iraq remain in power, and they are apt to if, as reported, Nuri Said has been killed, all the other Arab states in the Middle East will inevitably fall into Nasser's hands.

This means that he will control the petroleum from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and Iraq, with revenues in excess of $700,000,000 annually. He will control the territory over which the pipelines run, as he now controls the Suez canal. The only petroleum sources left in friendly hands in the Middle East will be those of Iran and the sheikdoms of Bahrain and Qatar. The latter are British protectorates.

The effect on American, British, French and Dutch oil investments in the Middle East is uncertain. The Western powers are the principal customers for the oil. Consequently, the West has the power to deprive Nasser of the oil revenues just as he will have the power to stop the flow of oil for bargaining purposes.

Initially it can be expected, say Middle Eastern experts, that Nasser will use this power to increase the share of the profits for his "Arab nation."

If the new Iraqi republic remains in power, Jordan cannot hold out alone. The coup d'etat in Iraq also will influence profoundly the situation in Lebanon.

Here there has been an uneasy co-operation between the Maronite Christians and the Moslems, dividing the government between them, with the President a Christian and the Prime Minister a Moslem and

FLEESON — It's 'Goodby, Sherm,' Now On G.O.P. Wall

White House Sees Handwriting and Decides to Let Adams Go.

By DORIS FLEESON
WASHINGTON, July 14.

THE HOUSE INQUIRY INTO the Sherman Adams intervention with Federal regulatory agencies in behalf of Bernard Goldfine has taken its predictable course.

The interests of the oddly assorted pair diverged on the instant that the Harris subcommittee counsel, Robert W. Lishman, began to cut close to the bone of the multifarious Goldfine business operations.

The Adams necessity is personal and political. It requires Goldfine to come clean and so make their friendship, however imprudent, a sparkling, good-humored and tolerable thing.

That is why Roger Robb, the Washington lawyer who is Adams' friend and has Republican party connections, was hired by Goldfine and put in general charge of the case. It was Robb who arranged for the public relations build-up and kept contact with Adams and the White House.

Successful at First. At first, Robb was successful with assists from the subcommittee members and an "imprudent" reporter and subcommittee investigator. But Lishman had been doing his homework, concentrating on the record of the Goldfine companies and their dismal relations with the regulatory agencies.

When Lishman at long last got his innings, Goldfine's Boston attorneys, whose primary mission is protection of his business affairs, promptly lost interest in the politics of the situation. Glancing the uncharted abysses which Lishman was opening up before their client, they silenced him.

The result is the threat of a contempt citation against Goldfine when the Harris subcommittee meets again tomorrow. The White House, for its part, has seen the handwriting on the wall, and it reads: "Goodby, Sherm." The Administration gambit is the classic one: Stories leaked from the customary relations sources that after Congress adjourns, Adams will quit.

May Have Agreed. Perhaps Adams agreed; he may even have initiated the stories. It does not matter. They are intended to reassure Republicans everywhere, and especially G.O.P. members of Congress, that they do not have to go into the election with Adams still functioning as President Eisenhower's principal assistant.

The stories suggest that Adams will delay resigning until after adjournment so that Democratic orators will not enjoy a field day. The fact is that considered Democratic strategy is to let the story carry itself, as it has done so well.

It is equally true that the Adams-Goldfine friendship is good campaign fodder now, however it turns out. It will take no very accomplished politician to ring the changes on it to suit his audience and the mood as he finds it.

It is even possible that Adams may have to return to the witness stand, for it develops that his hotel bills paid by Goldfine were about $3000, not the $2000 of his original testimony.

Goldfine also is undergoing a sea change from his Robb-created role as just a warm and generous creature of impulses. The scent of fear now infects his behavior. It may be only that he perceives trouble for his business. It could be that he suspects that somewhere in this city he is being thought of as expendable in the interest of bigger affairs than his and more important people.

Panama Asks Milton Eisenhower For More Aid, Rule Over Canal

DR. MILTON EISENHOWER (left) being greeted by PRESIDENT ERNESTO DE LA GUARDIA JR. at Panama City yesterday.

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK
BALBOA, Canal Zone, July 14 (AP).

MILTON EISENHOWER embarked on a tour of the Panama Canal today with his head full of Panama's proposals for economic aid and a plea for recognition of its sovereignty over the vital waterway.

It was the third day of the friendly and thus far uneventful fact-finding mission on which the President of the United States has sent his brother.

Later he goes on to Honduras, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Puerto Rico, El Salvador and Guatemala, in that order. The zig-zag itinerary was planned in advance and announced only today to foil any violent leftist demonstrations of the type that greeted Vice President Nixon on his South American tour.

If any similar anti-American sentiment exists in Panama, it did not show itself over the weekend. Dr. Eisenhower was shielded by strict security measures and whisked around Panama City so rapidly that the inhabitants of the capital hardly were aware of his presence. His daily schedule was not published.

Plea by Panama President. President Ernesto de la Guardia Jr. told the visitor that flying the Panamanian flag over the Canal Zone and using Spanish officials inside the zone would help give the United States Government "a continental perspective on all things involved in United States policy."

On his return to Washington Dr. Eisenhower is expected to get together with Vice President.

PEARSON — Army Harsh In Another Gift Case

Company Draws Year's Suspension After Officer Gets $1000.

By DREW PEARSON
(Copyright, 1958.)

WASHINGTON. WHILE Sherman Adams was receiving gifts totaling more than $5000 from Bernard Goldfine, another case of gift-giving was dealt with more harshly in the Army.

Col. George Kibler, an engineering procurement officer, had reported that Arthur Vennier of East Westfield, N.J., handed him an envelope containing $1000. Col. Kibler, who is attached to the Pentagon, reported the "gratuity" in May 1957.

The following July, the gratuities board provisionally suspended Vennier's firm from defense work. It was not until March 13, 1958, however, that the board formally determined that the $1000 was a gratuity for the purpose of influencing a defense contract.

In accordance with this, the board officially notified Vennier last May 7 that he would be barred from working for the defense establishments for one year.

Vennier then wrote a letter to Assistant Secretary Frank Higgins appealing for relief. He explained that he had come to this country from Italy in 1920, had worked as a carpenter by day and gone to night school until he worked his way up to become a construction superintendent and finally formed his own company. He had been active in church and civic affairs, had a fine family, and had not meant the $1000 as a bribe.

He said he had genuinely wanted to help Col. Kibler with the education of his son. Vennier went on to explain that almost his entire business was with the Government and if he was suspended from such business it would almost put him into bankruptcy.

Assistant Secretary Higgins was so impressed that he took the letter home over the weekend to try to decide what to do.

Higgins finally ruled against Vennier. The one-year suspension.

ALSO — Polls Show G.O.P. Will Lose Firm Hold on Legislatures

Basic Republican Asset in Danger of Destruction in View of Big Margins Predicted for Democrats.

By JOSEPH ALSO
WASHINGTON

CONFIDENTIAL polls sponsored by California Republicans produced an even worse result than the melancholy California primary. In the governorship race, particularly, the polls showed Senator William Knowland being beaten by State Attorney General Pat Brown by a margin of 61 to 39.

Knowland has yet to take the stump in earnest, but as he will have his work cut out for him to overcome a hostile margin of 22 percentage points. Apparently the Republican Senate candidate, former Gov. Goodwin Knight, is doing somewhat better than Knowland. But even so, the California figures are a striking addition to the other confidential poll results published in a report from New York.

One of those figures erred on the side of Republican optimism. The poll taken in Massachusetts actually showed Senator John Kennedy getting 80 per cent of the total vote. Besides making this correction, it also will be helpful to put the whole collection of figures together in tabular form. They make the following rather lurid picture:

Contest Democrat Republican
New York, Governor, 60 pct. 40 pct.
Connecticut, Governor, 67 pct. 33 pct.
California, Governor, 61 pct. 39 pct.
Massachusetts, Senator, 80 pct. 20 pct.
California, Senator, 53 pct. 47 pct.

Whether the polls were sponsored by Republicans, as in California and New York, or by Democrats, as in Massachusetts and Connecticut, the results are strikingly consistent. It is hard to believe that the election will produce such really staggering Democratic majorities. But unless the pollsters have gone unanimously mad, the whole familiar political landscape can be forever altered this year.

Important G.O.P. Asset. In particular, the rock bottom Republican asset will be endangered and perhaps destroyed by the kind of Democratic sweep the polls forecast.

This asset is simply the permanent Republican control of at least one house of almost every northern state legislature. This has been immemorably insured by gerrymandering, or by a rotten borough

In recent years, however, the rock-ribbed Republican majorities in many small Republican towns have been increasingly diluted by the spread of suburbia. A town-by-town analysis of the 1954 election showed that an average increase of 8 per cent in the Democratic vote would have put no fewer than 47 additional towns into the Democratic column. In theory, the Democrats might have thus taken the State Legislature in 1954. If Ribicoff had got 57 per cent of the vote instead of just over 50 per cent. This time, therefore, the Connecticut House will certainly be up for grabs if Ribicoff gets anything like his predicted 67 per cent of the total vote.

Few persons understand the enormous advantage the Republicans have always derived from these permanent strongholds in state governments, like the Connecticut and California.

Letters from the People

Rivers Not for Damming

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Some rivers deserve to be free — the Brule and Flambeau in Wisconsin, the Potomac, the Buffalo in Arkansas and the Current and Eleven Point in Missouri.

The clear-water streams — the Current and Eleven Point as you point out in your editorial, "The Current's Not for Damming," are the heritage of all Americans because of their pre-eminent wild beauty.

Yes, there is need for economic improvements in the heart of the Ozarks, but could this not be best achieved through logical development of the present resources — recreation and timber? Since nearly all facets of our economy have received government benefits in one form or another, perhaps the Ozarks deserve some also, but not in the form of a dam.

A national river system similar to the national parks system might be one approach to improving the recreational assets of this region.

This should not necessarily mean Federal control of lands, waters or administration of the Current National River. What is needed is some positive effort toward the preservation of these priceless rivers; the techniques are immaterial.

Increased appropriations for development and research in the hardwood forest industry is another step that transcends the need for a dam.

The Nature Conservancy Society, nationally and through an active committee of the Missouri Chapter is working for a permanent plan for the preservation of the Current and Eleven Point rivers and will welcome support.

One View of Mr. Curtis

I seem to see a great many letters about controversial subjects from Congressman Curtis in your paper. From these I gather he is in favor of the Ten Commandments.

Do you think we will ever receive one as to why he supports that natural gas bill? That is the one that takes all controls off gas prices and leaves the price to the tender mercies of the oil companies.

It is the one that Eisenhower favored but vetoed, because it smelled to high heaven of graft and bribery.

Mr. Curtis didn't seem to have such scruples. A. A. Calkins

Tax Mess

A couple of years ago I undertook the very pleasant task of supporting and completing the education of a teen-aged godchild after the death of her parents.

Naively, I listed her on my income tax as a dependent and received a very stern letter advising that inasmuch as she had resided at a boarding school, she did not qualify as a dependent, and that if the $130 plus taxes, plus etc., were not immediately forthcoming, the FBI, the T-Men, and the local police certainly would be.

What I cannot understand is why Bernard Goldfine can deduct Sherman Adams as a business expense when he swears under oath that he received no business advantage from his good friend, and I cannot claim Pat as a dependent when I can swear under oath that she was.

I thought of asking Mr. Goldfine or his secretary, Miss Paperman to explain it to me, but they seem a little confused themselves these days. K. J.

Good Old P.S.C.

I have recently returned from Honolulu after a stay of two years. The new bus fares here in St. Louis are equal to the ones in Honolulu. A distance of 12 miles into the city proper costs you 25 cents. A distance of 20 miles from an outlying suburb into the city is 35 cents.

The Honolulu buses run approximately one hour apart and the Honolulu Rapid Transit Co. is generous enough to change the schedule to every half hour during rush hours.

I use Public Service Co.'s Carondelet bus. There is always a bus in sight during rush hours. What more can the people of St. Louis want? I think what they really need is to be subjected to such travel by public conveyances as I have been subjected to in the islands.

Mrs. Robert L. Brown

So Do We

We saw the Cards lose the two heartbreakers to those lucky San Francisco Giants. But we think they have the stuff to go all the way. We are rooting for them every game, especially against the Giants. We sure would love to see them win the pennant before Murali retires. I hope you print this to let the fans know that we know there are a lot of fans rooting for them here in the Bay area.

Wealth in Ozark Beauty

How is it that the most beautiful part of Missouri, the Ozark hill country, became the state's number one economic problem?

In the 19th century the get-rich-quick lumber interests stripped the Ozarks of pine and fine hardwoods. The hills have suffered from open range and over-grazing and the foolish custom of "burning off the land" to provide grazing. These practices have turned much of the hill soil into the rivers, despoiling both.

The key to the economic problem of the Ozarks is timber. Missouri still has more than 15,000,000 acres of forest land, and no one doubts that it could be used as a prop for Missouri industry. Such neighboring states as Arkansas and Tennessee have proved that this is so.

A report by the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis shows how annual woodpulp plant capacity in these two states and Mississippi increased 167 per cent in the last decade. The mid-South has profited by a demand for paper products that far exceeds supply and which will increase by an estimated 42 per cent in the next ten years.

Arkansas, of course, preserved large pine forests and considerable hardwood. Missouri has little pine left. It might require years of reforestation for Missouri to offer the resources for newsprint or high-grade paper production. But even now the state has wood which could be used for paper board mills, and there are hundreds of other industrial uses for timber: lumber, veneers, crating, ties, barrel staves, manufacturing forms.

Missouri already has a growing timber industry. Encouraged by state timber management legislation, many forests have been improved, and manufacturing with it. For example, one barrel stave maker now has expanded and makes whole barrels. Timber is a million-dollar-a-year business around Salem alone.

With such prospects the state can be expected to invite attention and investment from timber manufacturing. But first the people of Missouri will have to decide that they want and will encourage a strong timber industry.

If they so decide, their legislators will revoke or modify the open range laws that permit overgrazing on anybody's land. They will reinforce the forest conservancy and fire protection efforts, and strengthen the Conservation Commission's forestry division in its effort to encourage more useful forest growths and harvesting of trees.

They will support such plans as that of the National Park Service and co-operating agencies for watershed and recreational development along the Current river. They will not support proposals for dams along such streams where dams would do too little good to offset the damage done to Missouri's unique beauty.

High timber and clear streams were nature's legacy to this state. By creating the basis for a timber industry, Missouri can use those same elements of its beauty for its economic growth.

A Job the County Can Do

If the County Council wants to strike a modest blow for efficiency and economy, it ought to authorize the county government to serve as a tax collector for any municipality that is willing. A proposal to do just that has been offered by Councilman Dunne at the request of the tax-conscious City of Berkeley. That city manager community evidently sees no reason to support both a city tax collector and a county collector, as do most of the county's other 90-odd municipalities. If the Council had been more alert it would have realized this basic need and moved to meet it a long while ago.

Of Thirsty Mice and Men

Certain misgivings which the admirers of more substantial beverages have long entertained toward the practice of water-drinking have now received scientific confirmation. A strain of mice under study by the United States Public Health Service at Bethesda, Md., is given to drinking itself into an early grave — on water.

Or at least the males do. The females just keep on drinking and drinking, with no noticeable ill effect: a phenomenon which is no doubt worthy of further study. These unfortunate rodents, now become confirmed aquaholics, do not, moreover, drink because they have to; they drink because they like to, which is, of course, far worse.

From mice to men is a short jump in scientific thought, and now that the pitfalls of water for internal use are known it must be hoped that no one will be so foolish as to propose its outright prohibition. Few would care to face the prospect of neo-speakeasies where water flowed like wine, and unscrupulous operators spiked Bourbon on the rocks from the tap with no thought of the possible consequences to the human system.

Temperance in the drinking of water should rather be the watchword; and those who cannot take it or leave it alone should stick to some safer beverage, possibly gin. By so doing, we can avoid the unhappy fate of the thirsty mice of Bethesda.

Ovations in Venezuela

The State Department and its Secretary, John Foster Dulles, can learn something from the receptions paid to Representative Charles O. Porter of Oregon on his visit to Venezuela. Enthusiastic crowds turned out for the Democratic Congressman in Caracas where so recently a very prominent official of the United States was accorded a very different kind of reception. The New York Times, which does not go overboard in descriptive reporting, spoke of "ovations" everywhere arising from "a vast reservoir of good will." On one occasion 20,000 people turned out to hear Representative Porter speak.

And why has a first-term young Congressman from Oregon been received this way in rock-throwing Venezuela? Because the newspapers of Caracas have told the people about Representative Porter's one-man fight against Dictator Trujillo of the Dominican Republic. The Venezuelans look on him as the chief opponent of Trujillo in Washington. Indeed their newspapers call him "the representative of Latin America in the United States Congress." He is so much admired for his fight against Trujillo that he was invited to their country by the Venezuelan Newspapermen's Association.

We can no longer assume that Latin Americans do not know the score. This cordial treatment of Congressman Porter — he has been in office hardly 18 months — means that many Venezuelans know more about him than most voters in the United States know. The State Department will do well to reflect on this as it works on the improvement of relations between South America countries and Washington.

A New Blow in Iraq

The overthrow of King Faisal in Iraq is potentially a far greater blow to American foreign policy in the Middle East than the rebellion in Lebanon. Iraq is the very heart and core of the Baghdad Pact. If the pro-Nasser army elements make good their revolt and carry out their evident intentions of joining the Nasser bloc, the Baghdad Pact must be considered as good as dead.

Just because this latest development is so devastating, the West in general and the United States in particular must take exceptional care to react wisely and prudently. There will be in some quarters, undoubtedly, an immediate demand for military intervention. It should be resisted. Notwithstanding the heavy loss to the Western cause in the immediate event, even greater losses would be generated if we resorted to military measures unless they had the full sanction and support of a preponderance of the United Nations.

The Baghdad Pact was erected to provide collective security against a military attack from the Soviet Union, but there has been no military attack. The Eisenhower Doctrine was erected to strengthen Middle Eastern governments against Communist assault, but there has been no Communist assault. The Nasser movement has, of course, incited revolt and offered political and perhaps other support. But this is a far different thing from military aggression across frontiers, and it is most unlikely that the United Nations would countenance any military response unless such aggression were involved. If a cause for U.N. action was lacking in Lebanon it is even less plausible in the case of Iraq.

American interests in the Middle East are now reaping the harvest of a policy unwisely based on military pacts and oriented exclusively to the possibility of military attack from the Soviet Union. While we manned the ramparts against the Kremlin, we neglected the basic political elements which made our position progressively weaker behind the military "shield."

This is bad enough, but we would only make it worse by trying to retrieve our losses with unilateral military power. A whole new Middle Eastern policy will have to be built from the bottom up.

Challenge to a Good Senator

Tennessee voters will decide the Democratic primary contest between Senator Albert Gore and former Gov. Prentice Cooper without outside assistance, but they ought to know that the nation as a whole can be grateful for the record of Senator Gore.

In his column opposite this page, William S. White relates how Mr. Cooper is using cheap race-prejudice tactics against the Senator, who has taken a courageous position on civil rights. Senator Gore's other activities in behalf of the public good also merit recognition.

As a leading senatorial student of the national economy, he conducted an inquiry into price rises last year, and warned of the recession before it came. When it came, he introduced a public works bill to help reverse the trend.

He was the principal author of the vast new federal highway building program.

He has championed public power in the atomic energy field, and pushed through a bill for building public reactors at Atomic Energy Commission installations. He helped expose the Dixon-Yates deal which would have damaged the Tennessee Valley Authority.

He was a principal in the investigation of campaign spending and an exponent of stricter rules governing such funds.

Always he has led the struggle to protect reciprocal trade. As a close critic of foreign policy, he called attention to the danger of intervention in Indochina.

These are a few of Senator Gore's activities which have won him deep respect in the United States Senate. He ought to be respected in Tennessee.

The State Buys Some Real Estate

The state's decision to put up its new Employment Security building in downtown St. Louis points up one of downtown's distinguishing characteristics — its basic accessibility, especially to those who do not drive or own automobiles.

Every major bus and streetcar line terminates in the downtown district, as will all four radial expressways when they have been completed. For the service or business that must make itself available to large numbers of people, downtown is still the most logical place to locate, as the state's action reaffirms.

The new Employment Security building ought to help stabilize, if not enhance, downtown property values. To the extent that it does it will benefit every taxpayer in the city. Downtown carries upwards of 20 per cent of the municipal and school property tax load, and it is very much in the public interest to protect it.

Gov. Blair's similar decision to purchase the 141-year-old St. Charles building that once served as Missouri's capitol also is to be applauded. The historic structure eventually can be restored and made into an attractive museum of the state's beginnings.

Evidence for the Labor Bill

Counsel Robert F. Kennedy says that as the Senate Rackets Committee goes deeper into its subject, it will show that the underworld is milking a billion dollars a year out of labor-management rackets. However this theme is developed, the committee already has collected enough evidence to show the necessity for the Senate's labor bill now before the House.

This bill includes provisions for secret union elections, public financial reporting and penalties against collusion in labor relations. Such provisions would make it more difficult for racketeers to control unions, or to use strike threats for extortion. That is what the committee suspects Chicago gangsters have been doing to restaurant owners. In any case the "protection" racket is an old one.

Granted that the separate bill for reporting on welfare funds ought to have first priority in the House, that chamber will have no real excuse for ignoring the general labor bill. It merits the support of business, labor and members of Congress.

ONLY MAN CAN MAKE THIS TREE

Growing Up in a Violent World

Hatred in Delinquents Cannot Be Matched by Hatred by Community

Dr. W. C. Kvaraceus,
Boston University, in U.S. News & World Report

Q. Dr. Kvaraceus, is there more brutality and violence in the schools than there used to be?

A. I think there is, and I think it's a reflection of the violence and self-indulgence in our culture. All you have to do is pick up any headline in terms of, let's say, a mock air raid — which is suggestive of violence — any headline in terms of the African situation, and the need for a "summit" conference under the threat of war — the implication being that the one way to solve your problems is to fight your way through to a solution. This is the culture in which we breed children, of which the school is really not a part, but a reflection or victim.

The Mirror

Public Opinion

Q. Is the discipline and behavior problem in the schools common all over the United States, or is it just in certain sections?

A. I would say that the problem is heaviest in the big cities where educational bigness invites anonymity and a kind of impersonal classroom relationship. I think anonymity, in a sense, breeds discontent, despair and delinquency.

Q. Do you think that a lot more of this violence goes on than gets into the newspapers?

A. Not only do we think so, we know so. We know just how much more.

There have been a number of research studies that imply — this is a rather ominous problem — that in less than 2 per cent of the infractions does the community take official and legal action.

Q. What effect does integration of schools and general mixture of races have on the rising delinquency rate?

A. I think it adds another pressure, and I think the pressures are rather subtle. I think the integration of groups brings out very often an educational problem from the point of view of teaching and learning, almost tangential to the color problem. For example, if you merge in any community Negro youngsters from the fourth grade with white youngsters in the fourth grade, you widen the range of individual differences within the class by several grades.

Q. Do you mean the school achievement level of the colored child is usually that much below that of the white child?

A. Yes, I think there has been some evidence along this line presented by several investigators. This means that the teacher has got to modify her approaches to accommodate nonreaders, poor readers, average readers and good readers. This is only one aspect.

I think, too, that as this factor of integration reflects adult tensions on a community-wide basis — a school doesn't exist in a vacuum — we will also suffer from all the emotional debris of adults and find these reflected in the classroom behavior of children.

Q. Do you think that the school's discipline is too lenient these days?

A. Let me say that my conviction and observation is that, in our undisciplined culture, the one place that you can find still a remnant of discipline of the clock, the one-half-inch margin with a double line, discipline of some dress, speech — the only place that you'll find this today is in the schools, although this institution cannot withstand the undisciplined culture around it, and the cracks are showing.

Q. Do compulsory-education laws force schools to keep some children in school too long?

A. They sure do, but this is essentially a curriculum problem. Let me say that, if we force every child to travel via the school agency, then it won't only be good, it will be sure that we have a sufficient variety of school experiences to enable the youngster to get something out of this trip.

Much of what we see today in the aggressive and hostile behavior of students is a regurgitation of this curriculum problem.

Let's say: If more math and science represent the ideal in the tradition of the old Boston Latin School, if this is the only curriculum that is to be provided for different children, then the recognition that this kind of Boston Latin School curriculum could be mastered by only about 16 per cent of our child population.

I think we've got to make up our minds: Are we going to run an institution compulsory in nature for all children and provide just the route that 16 per cent can follow — making ences within the class by several grades.

Q. Do you think idleness of the teen-aged is part of the cause of delinquency?

A. I would start with anonymity in school, boredom, failure in school, and boredom outside of school.

There are so many of them they are a kind of surplus commodity on a glutted market, and, if their cosmetic value is high and they are pleasant and smiling, this is fine; but the minute that they get dirty, and, let's say, reflect our adult inadequacies, then we strike back at them sharply and viciously.

They are a source of much local irritation to us, and we belittle about this particular problem. But all the while we adults are ready to exploit youth — even delinquent youth.

Q. Some people think that military training does them good. Do you think so?

A. It may make or break them. As far as the delinquents are concerned, I think it would break most of them. The current screening practices in certain divisions of our armed services verify that. If the youngster is in trouble locally and if he is absconding in school, he is more likely to be the AWOL in the service.

If he is a homosexual in the neighborhood, he is apt to be a homosexual on a ship. In other words, the best evidence you can offer of future maladjustment is your being maladjusted now, and I see nothing but threat to most of the delinquents in the Navy, Army, Marine routine.

If they can't take the discipline of the school, they can't take the discipline of the armed forces.

School and community must take a positive and a reconstructionist attitude toward the delinquent. He is a hostile child — full of hate. But the community today is likewise full of hostility toward this child.

A Unique Year, Girl Scouts and Pictorial Images

THE YEAR OF THE WHITE TREES, by Jane Mayer. (Random House, 282 pgs., $3.50.)

"The Year of the White Trees" is, as the title indicates, a year set apart in the life of Anneira Veck, the heroine of Jane Mayer's novel. It is the year in which she meets and has an affair with the famous concert violinist, Ellis Springbok.

It considers the question of whether a love affair can be completely satisfying when all the giving is on one side, Anneira, a young English teacher, meets the musician who already has a wife and family. They are instantly and mutually attracted. Their year together is a time unique for both of them. At the end of the period, a decision must be reached, and, knowing her love, Anneira makes it.

The question of the special needs of an artist is not a new one, and the arguments on both sides are well-known. Set against the glamour and fascination of a famous man and the love he can spare from his career, are the attractions of a home, a settled love and permanency. Anneira is no love-starved spinster, but a mild-mannered, normal young woman, interested in her own work, and endowed with a large capacity for giving.

There are, naturally, no general, settled, satisfactory solutions to such a problem. However, Jane Mayer handles the question sensitively and her resolution of the problem is a good one; at least for the case in question. Marie Lippincott

LADY FROM SAVANNAH, by Gladys Denny Schultz and Daisy Gordon Lawrence. (Lippincott, 383 pgs., $4.95.)

This life of the woman who was Juliette Low tells the colorful and dramatic personal story of the founder of the Girl Scouts. It is a well-researched, well-written book.

Mrs. Schultz and Mrs. Lawrence give the available facts in some detail, with tact yet also with clarity.

THE PHANTASIES OF A PRISONER,
by Lowell Naeve. (Allan Swallow, Denver, $5.)

This is a remarkable book, unlike any other I have come across in years of reviewing. The publisher calls it "a visual novel," but a more accurate description would be "a poem in line." The author is an American artist who spent four and a half years in prison as a conscientious objector during World War II. From that experience grew this book — a series of pictorial images showing the pyness of man faced with the forces of eternity.

Each section of the book is preceded by a few striking verses, but it is in his immaculate line drawings that the imagination of the artist truly takes wing. One is inevitably reminded of Blake in Lowell Naeve's command of space, design and perspective.

That there is a mordant irony in these drawings is not surprising, bearing in mind how and where they were first conceived. The book deserves the widest audience: this is poetic imagination of a high order. Gerald Johnson

WILLIAM S. WHITE

Moderation vs. Racism in Tennessee

WASHINGTON.

SOMETIMES AN APPARENTLY logical political race has, below the surface, an importance far above its meaning at home—a significance hardly less than that of a national election. Such a rare contest has developed in Tennessee. Superficially, the issue simply is whether Senator Albert Gore shall be granted a Democratic renomination equivalent to reelection or whether he shall be replaced by Prentice Cooper.

The outcome of the primary Aug. 7 will involve neither partisan gain nor loss; the seat in any event will remain Democratic. But being put to the test is a whole new political movement. This is nothing less than the long effort of the younger South to turn away from the destructive memories of the war between the states—still to honor Southern gallantry, yes, but to forget the wounding bitterness of a defeat sealed nearly a hundred years ago.

In a Tragic Backwash.

The result will tell whether a moderately liberal and forward-looking Southern political view can survive in the tragic backwash of the racial crisis in Little Rock and elsewhere. And if this view cannot live in Tennessee, which is upper Southern rather than deep Southern, it can hardly live anywhere in the South.

All this is the estimate of the ablest national politicians here, in both parties and from all sections. The eyes of political Washington are focusing on Tennessee.

For Gore is the first to come up for re-election of that handful of Southern Senators who twice in less than three years have refused to go all the way with the traditional Southern position on civil rights.

Test for Standpatism.

In 1956 Gore and his Tennessee colleagues, Senator Estes Kefauver, and the Senate Democratic leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas did not sign the Southern manifesto for all-out resistance to school integration.

And in 1957 Gore and these same two worked for, rather than against, a moderate civil rights bill. They helped provide the first federal enforcement powers over the right to vote that had been granted since the Reconstruction. Cooper, Gore's challenger, is recalling these facts from the levers of Memphis to the hills of Chattanooga and Knoxville. He is the champion of Southern standpatism. Gore is now feeling the whip of the Southern right wing for having gone too far on civil rights. A year ago he—and all the other Southern moderates—were under the lash of the Democratic liberal wing, and of Northerners in general, for not being willing to go far enough.

Box Score on Rights.

This, of course, is not the sole issue in Tennessee. Another is Gore's discipleship of Cordell Hull, father of reciprocal trade. But on the great and sometimes harshly simplified scorecard of national politics, few will look beyond the total of hits, runs and errors on civil rights.

Gore's victory would hearten those Southern moderates who wish to work on the civil rights problem by compromise and not to break morally with the Northern Democrats. It would permit a slight forward movement of those who know that the demand for increased Negro rights will not slacken but will at length break, violently or otherwise, every barrier that is kept too high against it. His defeat would amount to a repudiation of this whole policy of giving ground gradually rather than all at once, and it would frighten all the Southern moderates in national politics. Deeply, if subtly, it would alter the tone of the next Senate. The moderates would be far less able to seek middle-road solutions.

Effect on the Party.

The Southern extremists, who now actually have little power here, would raise their influence, their demands—and their voices. Less immediately visible ripples, too, would come from this rock in the pond.

The 1960 Democratic national convention would not be unaffected. For the Northern Democratic liberals would feel that Gore's demand for more and more in the way of a "strong" civil rights plan. Already they are making this plain in private. Tennessee is indeed a great battleground—not between Republican and Democrat but between Democrat and Democrat. This is a passage at arms that is immeasurably bigger on the inside than it looks on the outside.

'ON THE TOWN' OPENS TONIGHT IN THE PARK

Leonard Bernstein's Musical To Have Its St. Louis Premiere.

The St. Louis premiere of "On the Town," Leonard Bernstein's musical about three sailors on a 24-hour leave in New York, will begin a one-week engagement at the Municipal Opera tonight at 8:30 o'clock. Singing comedians Mary McCarty and Paul Gilbert head the cast. Miss McCarty will play Hildy, a man-crazy taxi cab driver, and Gilbert will portray Ozzie, the most fun-loving of the three sailors.

Others in the cast will be Cynthia Scott, as Ivy; Barbara Perry, as Claire; Cris Alexander as Chip; Jim Stevenson, as Gabby; Dorothy Greener, as Lucy Schmeidler; Ruth Gillette, as Maude P. Dilly; Joseph Cusanelli, as Pitkin; Caroline Worth, as Flossie; Lucille Smith, as Flossie's friend; Edmund Lyndek, as Figment, and Walter Richardson, as the bill poster.

Bernstein, who wrote the music for "On the Town," composed the music for Broadway's current hit, "Can-Can," and for "Candide" and "Wonderful Town." Among the songs that will be heard in "On the Town" are "New York, New York," "Lonely Town," "I Can Cook," "Lucky to Be Me" and "I Understand."

The story tells of the adventures of three sailors on their first whirlwind visit to New York. They see a photograph of Miss Turnstiles, the current queen of the subway system, and vow to find her. In the search each of the sailors finds a girl.

Settings for the dancing numbers are the subways, Times Square and Coney Island amusement park. Tickets for all performances are on sale daily at the Municipal Opera box office in Forest Park, daily except Sunday at the Arcade building box office in downtown St. Louis and at seven other locations in the area. Prices range from 75 cents to $3.50.

Canterbury Stirs Storm, Says H-War Might Be God's Intention

No Evidence Human Race Should Last Forever, Archbishop Writes.

LONDON, July 14 (AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury stirred up a storm yesterday by suggesting it might be God's intention that the human race destroy itself in an H-bomb war.

Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, head of the Church of England, comments in a new book: "For all I know it is within the providence of God that the human race should destroy itself in the manner. There is no evidence that the human race should last forever, and plenty in scripture to the contrary."

The Archbishop was one of 22 contributors to a book, "The Fearful Choice," edited by Philip Toynbee, son of historian Arnold Toynbee. The younger Toynbee, former leftist novelist, advanced the view that occupation by the Russians would be preferable to a hydrogen war.

The Archbishop, in a critical reply, contended, "Policy should not be based simply on fear of pain."

Dr. Fisher's views were described as "wicked" by Canon L. J. Collins, the preceptor of St. Paul's Cathedral. Canon Collins, leader of a group of Anglican churchmen who feel British should renounce nuclear weapons—alone if necessary—said:

"It is one thing to accept suffering on one's own behalf. It is quite another—to think lightly of suffering caused to other people."

The Archbishop of Canterbury, who is head of the Anglican Church wrote: "I am not being unfeeling. Christ in his crucifixion showed us how to suffer creatively. He did not claim to end suffering, nor did he bid his disciples to avoid suffering.

"I cannot establish any policy merely on whether or not it will save the human race from a period of suffering or from extinction."

The Sunday Pictorial commented, "Surely this can't be the will of God."

In Rochester, meanwhile, Anglican Bishop C. M. Chavasse said in a sermon that total destruction in a third world war would be preferable to serfdom under totalitarian domination.

"For the Christians aggressive war is always wrong," the bishop said. "But defensive war or war to preserve order or to save others from oppression is a very different matter. As such, in an evil world, war can be the lesser of two evils."

HEAD OF DENTAL ALUMNI SKYSCRAPER BUILDER DIES

Dr. Lester H. Jasper, 608 Florence avenue, Webster Groves, has been elected president of the Washington University Dental Alumni Association, it was announced today.

Other new officers are Dr. William E. Koch, 509 Sunny-side avenue, Webster Groves, first vice president; Dr. James M. Rose, 201 South Central avenue, Clayton, second vice president, and Dr. J. Rogers Wellman, 412 West Polo drive, Clayton, secretary-treasurer.

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—

Frederick T. Ley, who built Manhattan's Chrysler building, the second tallest structure in the world, died at his home yesterday. He was 86 years old.

His 30 major structures in the New York City area include the 77-story Chrysler building and the Westinghouse, Fisk, International Business Machines and Liggett buildings.

ARCHBISHOP MICHAEL DIES IN NEW YORK

Headed Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America.

NEW YORK, July 14—Archbishop Michael, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America, died of a heart ailment yesterday in Doctors Hospital. He was 66 years old. He made his headquarters in New York.

Early last week, Archbishop Michael became ill when attending an ecclesiastical congress in Salt Lake City. He was flown here Tuesday, and on Wednesday underwent an extensive operation on his colon.

After the operation, the Archbishop went into shock, but he responded to treatment. Yesterday the Archbishop nodded his head when asked by a physician how he felt. A moment later he died.

The spiritual leader of more than 1,300,000 Orthodox Christians in the Western Hemisphere, Archbishop Michael was considered one of the most learned men in his church. He had written a number of books on the teachings and administration of the Greek Church.

Archbishop Michael was born Thucydes Constantines May 27, 1892, in the Greek province of Maronis in western Thrace.

He became chancellor of the Archdiocese of Athens and All Greece in 1923. He retained this post until 1927, when he was transferred to London as dean of the Greek Cathedral of St. Sophia. Then, in 1939, he was given the high rank of Metropolitan of the Diocese of Corinth. Ten years later he was elected archbishop of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America.

Archbishop Michael became a citizen of the United States after assuming his new post. In 1954, Archbishop Michael enrolled President Eisenhower in the Grand Order of the Holy Sepulchre in recognition of the President's efforts "toward world freedom, justice and peace." Last year, he was one of the four clergymen who participated in the President's second inauguration.

NADLER BATTING FROM $4000 LEVEL IN BASEBALL QUIZ

Teddy Nadler of St. Louis tied at the $4000 level last night in his current television quiz match with Frank Scott, who manages more than 90 major league baseball players, on Columbia Broadcasting System's "The $64,000 Challenge."

Nadler and Scott answered a series of questions concerning the 1954 baseball season, when the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, and the 1941 season, when Brooklyn fans threatened a boycott.

In addition to continuing his match with Scott next week, Nadler will compete for $2000 with retired Air Force Gen. Robert Scott Jr. Their subject will be geography. Nadler already has won $176,000 on television shows.

FUNERAL TO BE TOMORROW FOR DR. EUGENE BARRYMORE

Funeral services for Dr. Eugene Barrymore, a retired general practitioner of Bowling Green, Mo., will be at 9 a.m. tomorrow at St. James the Greater Church, 1349 Tamm avenue, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

Dr. Barrymore, who was 79 years old and a veteran of the Spanish-American war, died Saturday at John J. Cochran Veterans Hospital of complications following an operation. He had practiced medicine for 50 years before retiring about two years ago. Lately, he had been living with his niece, Mrs. John L. Vorbeck of 1500 Tamm avenue.

SOVIET ZEAL NOTED IN HIGHER EDUCATION

American Group Impressed by Russians' 'Deadly Seriousness.'

© New York Times News Service. PITTSBURGH, July 14—The Soviet Union and its people have dedicated themselves to higher education with "deadly seriousness."

The intensity of their efforts must "inspire their allies and give very serious pause to any nation which finds itself in a competitive position."

This was reported yesterday by the chairman of a group of eight American educators who made a two-week study of higher education in the Soviet Union.

The chairman is Dr. Edward H. Litchfield, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh. He cabled the preliminary report of the group's findings from Paris to his office in Pittsburgh.

Two things deeply impressed the group, Dr. Litchfield said. "First, there is almost universal belief in the Soviet Union in the value of higher education. Second, the Russians are willing to pay the very high costs that are involved in money, in plant, in human effort."

As a result, he said, "they have accomplished a tremendous amount in a relatively brief period of time and with their determination they will continue to progress at an impressive rate."

However, Dr. Litchfield said the group had "serious reservations" about what the Russians were attempting to achieve and the way they were doing it.

"We are in fundamental disagreement with an educational philosophy which educates the individual exclusively in the interest of the momentary notions of what the state requires," he said. "Relatively little importance is attached to individual growth for its own sake."

There is no effort in Soviet higher institutions of learning to provide the student a liberal education "as we know the term," he said.

The trip was financed privately. The delegation traveled under the terms of the cultural exchange agreement. A similar delegation of Soviet educators will pay a return visit in November.

SELLING OILS ON IRAQ REVOLT DROPS MARKET

By ELMER C. WALKER
UPI Special Editor

NEW YORK, July 14 (UPI)—Selling drove stocks down in the last part of today's session after the general list had resisted pressure earlier on the pro-Nasser coup in Iraq.

International Oils were weak all day, but other departments of the list had moved narrowly, especially the rails. Finally, however, the whole market softened with rails joining the decline.

Dow-Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was 5.96 points lower at 476.89 at the close. The 20 rails lost 1.52 at 120.82 and the 15 utilities dropped 40 of a point to 80.15.

The industrial average, heavily weighted with oils, had its widest decline since June 19, the day Congress rejected repeal of the auto excise tax and intimated it might refuse a rail excise tax cut.

Reichhold Chemical fell 3 1/4 points and met only meager support until late in the day when the company raised its dividend from 20 cents to 25 cents a share.

The issue promptly ran up 3 points from its low and then eased from the best level on profit-taking.

Oils Open With Losses.

Oils opened with losses ranging to 4 points in Gulf. Heavy sales took place in Royal Dutch which lost nearly 3 points. Standard Oil (New Jersey) off 2 and Shell Transport off more than a point.

Texas Co. was a weak spot. So was Standard Oil of California. All the International Oils broke sharply on large volume. Only two companies are heavily interested in Iraq but traders anticipated the Iraq incident might have repercussions in the entire Middle East where American companies have invested billions.

Ticker Late Early.

Lukens Steel broke early in the day and other steels showed losses ranging to more than a point. Motors sagged.

Utilities showed declines running to more than a point. General Electric was down one.

Trading picked up on the late decline but tapers managed to hold even with the market. They ran late for a few minutes early in the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks fell $2.20 to $174.90, the widest drop since Dec. 17 when it lost $2.70. The industrial lost $3.60, the rails $1.70 and the utilities 40 cents.

Based on the fall in the Associated Press average, the quoted value of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange lost an estimated $2,800,000,000.

Volume was 2,540,000 shares compared with 2,400,000 on Friday.

OIL SHARES AT LONDON DOWN ON IRAQ NEWS

LONDON, July 14 (AP)—Oil shares tumbled on the stock exchange today as a result of the Iraq revolution.

Prices were several shillings lower. Worst hit was British Petroleum down half a dollar and a half. Prices were lower in most sections.

MIDWEST PIPING QUARTER

Midwest Piping Co., Inc., in unaudited interim statement reported earnings for the first three months of its fiscal year of $458,522, equivalent to 59 cents a share, compared with $471,787, or 61 cents a share for the like period last year.

The reporting period was March, April and May.

ODD LOT TRANSACTIONS

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—The New York Stock Exchange reported today these odd lot transactions by principal dealers for July 11: Purchases of 214,678 shares; sales of 214,629 shares, including 2890 shares sold short.

WHEAT IS HIGHER IN MIXED MARKET

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP)—Wheat buying nudged the touch wheat futures market again today on the Board of Trade and the July contract moved ahead more than 2 cents a bushel at times.

With weekend receipts of the grain still running well below the normal harvest-time volume, prices reacted quickly to the mild demand and chased out a good volume of short-covering.

A PICK-UP IN PRINT CLOTH ACTIVITY HIGHLIGHTED DEVELOPMENTS IN THE COTTON TEXTILE MARKET MONDAY

Dealers said that late last week one or two mills made price concessions, with the result that a few million yards of the popular 80 square print cloth were sold for the fourth quarter and also the first quarter of 1959 delivery. The price paid was 17 1/2 cents a yard. Mill quarters said that there was not much activity in the 80 square but moderate sales developed for the fourth quarter in some specialty numbers of the print cloth section. Other fabrics were on the quiet side, but mills were hopeful for a broader demand this week.

DEVON & RAYMONDS CO. REPORTED JANUARY-JUNE PROFIT OF LESS THAN 30 PER CENT of the amount earned in the first half of 1957. The figures are $207,549 this year compared with $754,811 last year. The net equals 39 cents a share of class A common and 19 cents a share of class B common for 1958 compared with $1.40 on the class A and 70 cents on the class B in 1957. The firm, which makes paints and industrial finishes, is controlled by Merritt-Chapman & Scott.

Princess at Church

Britain's Princess Margaret makes smiling departure from Christ Church Cathedral at Victoria, B.C., yesterday, escorted by Dean Brian Whitlow. Following them are Lt. Gov. and Mrs. Frank Ross. The Princess, on her first official visit to Canada, arrived Saturday for a round of appearances in connection with British Columbia's centennial before starting a cross-country tour.

Titan in Tower

First picture of the Air Force's Titan missile indicates size of the massive weapon which is being built by the Martin Co. near Denver. Standing in its static test tower, the missile is 90 feet long, 10 feet in diameter at the base and, when fully fueled, weighs 200,000 pounds. It has a range of about 5500 miles and is to be test fired at Cape Canaveral, Fla., late this year.

A facet of the Old West rolls over a modern highway as reproduction of a Wells Fargo stagecoach heads westward along the highway near Collinsville yesterday. En route from Chicago to Denver, the coach pulled into St. Louis today for a ceremonial visit to the site of the old Wells Fargo office, eastern terminus of the pre-railroad route to the West. Driver Toad Bricker and his companion Carlan Garrett are averaging about 3 1/2 miles an hour on their jaunt to Denver, where Colorado's centennial will be marked next year.

Hal Boyle Culinary Triumph For U.S. in Brussels

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP). AMERICA HAS SCORED an unexpected culinary triumph at the Brussels international exposition with—of all things—frozen custard.

HAL BOYLE

"The Europeans have gone crazy over it," said David Berge, executive vice president of the Brasserie restaurant chain. "Frozen custard has been our surprise success... and biggest seller."

"Last Sunday they bought 7800 cones."

As supervisor of dining facilities in the American pavilion at the Belgian fair, Berge met nothing but headaches at the start. "It seemed for a while like we had almost as many critics as customers," he remarked.

Berge found himself in the soup—literally—when he put Manhattan clam chowder on the menu. An indignant chorus from Connecticut to Maine immediately demanded equal billing for New England clam chowder.

Typical was an editorial comment by the famous Vineyard Gazette of Martha's Vineyard, Mass. "It may be sometime demonstrated that Manhattan clam chowder is the main cause of juvenile delinquency. When the relaxation of old standards and principles begins, anything can happen."

Obliquely Berge, a man who likes to keep everybody happy, bowed to regional pride.

"We're putting both chowders on the menu—so the New Englander won't feel a forgotten man."

But Berge sturdily has fought back at native critics who thought his emphasis on such items as hamburgers and hot dogs was beneath the dignity of a mighty nation. "We asked people who'd been abroad what things they missed most while away from home," he said. "They mentioned things like clam chowder, cheesecake, hamburgers, hot dogs, roast beef, corned beef, apple pie, American coffee, malted milk and ice cream sundaes."

Some critics sniffed at the quick lunch atmosphere of the American restaurant. "But that's just what the mass of people at an exposition want," said Berge. "Most of them can't afford the $4 to $15 a meal it costs to eat at the continental style restaurants at the fair. That's for the luxury trade. At the American restaurant they can get a lunch consisting of a hamburger, apple pie and coffee for $1. Dinner costs $2 or less."

The formula seems to be working out. The United States restaurant is serving approximately 20,000 persons a day. "That's as many as any other five exposition restaurants put together," said Berge, comfortably. "We're giving them what they want."

"The French and Italians go most for the frozen custard. The size of the double-dip 20-cent cones seems to fascinate them. The West Germans like our American coffee and cheesecake. The English, Scotch and Irish find our barbecued chicken an adventure."

"Every nationality likes to try the hamburgers and hot dogs. We also are serving American beer and California wine. That may seem like carrying coals to Newcastle, but they're both going well."

As a final rebuttal to his early critics, Berge rubbed his chubby hands together, and observed cheerfully:

"You know, the chefs from the Hungarian pavilion and the guards at the Russian pavilion now eat in our restaurant whenever they can."

Christopher Billopp Child's High Chair

A HIGH CHAIR is designed for the use of a small child. It puts the child in a raised position and, placed beside the dining room table, enables the child to be a member of the family group.

From the high chair the child can see what other members of the family are eating and demand it in preference to the uninteresting food with which small children are fed.

If members of the family pay no attention to the appeals of the child for their food, the child can attract their attention by kicking the table.

An important part of the high chair is the tray on which the child's food may be placed, while at the same time it serves as a guard to hold the child in the chair. The food, both solid and liquid, is then in a convenient position for being knocked over by the child.

If the child is bright it soon learns the uses to which a high chair can be put in addition to its conventional and uninteresting function as a place in which to eat. For example, instead of kicking the table the child may push with its foot against it so that the high chair will go over backward unless the pushing is stopped in time.

Nor is there anything to prevent a bright child from trying to escape from a high chair by standing in the seat. It now is in a commanding position to lose its balance and fall over the side of the chair. The distance to the floor is sufficient to break a head or a bone.

It is a great relief to grown-ups when the child reaches the age where it can leave the high chair and sit on a dictionary instead. The dictionary is much less likely to bring on nervous indigestion or ulcers.

Bennett Cerf Try and Stop Me

RETURNING from one of his European jaunts, Mark Twain was detained by an over-diligent customs inspector. "No use your rummaging through my baggage that way," said Twain testily. "I assure you it contains nothing but my clothing."

Just then the inspector came up with two bottles of very fine, very expensive brandy. "I suppose this is 'clothes' too," he sneered.

"It most certainly is," snapped Twain. "That is my night cap."

Another Mark Twain story concerns the day a foppish undergraduate assured him that he had given up the study of medicine to be an author. "It is my hope," he added proudly, "that I may thus be able to serve humanity the better."

"I do not feel that this additional sacrifice on your part is absolutely necessary," commented Twain, "for you already have served humanity nobly by giving up the study of medicine."

Who Owns a Fallen Satellite? Does It Belong to Country of Origin or to Nation Where it Descends?

By I. M. Levitt

Director, Franklin Institute
Planetarium, Philadelphia

WHO OWNS a fallen satellite? The country launching it or the country where it descends?

These questions, thrust upon an unprepared world, will become more cogent as time passes. Very quickly some precept of international law must be brought to bear. The rapid development of rocket and satellite technology demands it.

After about 890 revolutions of the earth, the third-stage rocket that launched Sputnik I plunged into the dense atmosphere on its way to earth. A brilliant object—brighter than the brightest of planets—was reported by observers in Maine, Alaska and California at about the time the rocket was moving across the Western Hemisphere. Scientists believe fragments of it survived but its place of fall is apparently unknown.

A week later, however, Soviet Premier Khrushchev asked the United States to return the rocket. Russian experts, he said, had calculated it fell in the United States. Experts at the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory in Cambridge, Mass., denied this. No more has been heard of the incident.

Had such an object fallen near civilization, it would have been a field day for citizens and the press, and could hardly have been kept secret.

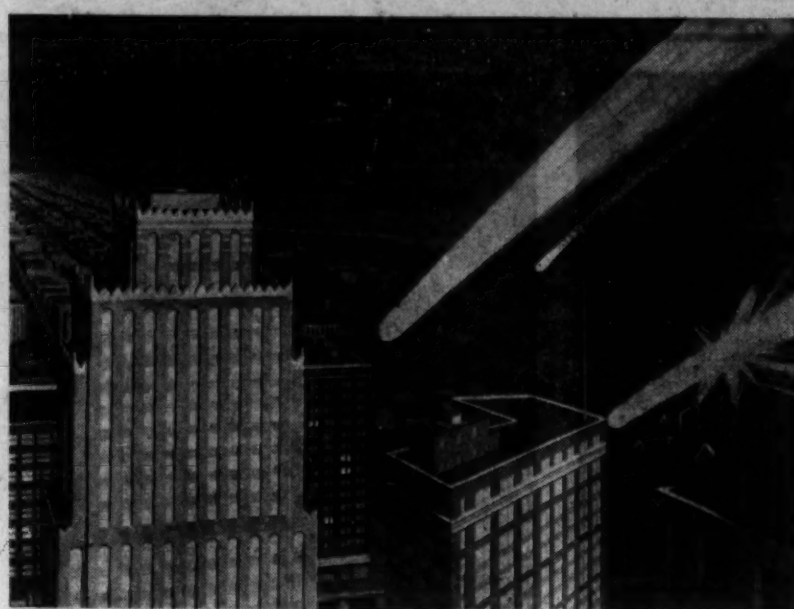

Several years ago, a German V-2 fired from White Sands, N. M., went berserk and plowed into a hillside cemetery near Juarez, Mexico. Villagers set up stands and sold refreshments to the tourists, as well as "fragments" of the rocket looking suspiciously like fragments of junked automobiles.

What if Russia's rocket had fallen in the United States? Would we be legally obligated to return it? If one of our Vanguard or Explorer falls in a foreign country, must that country return it to us?

Andrew J. Haley, an eminent attorney and president of the International Astronautical Association, has some interesting views about this.

He holds with the ancient right of a sovereign state to own not only the land but also the atmosphere above it. International air travel today is beset with regulations and no plane of one country can safely fly over another without permission.

It would be legally reasonable, says Haley, for any nation to forbid passage of a satellite over its territory.

If Russian satellites fell upon New York, would the Soviet Union be responsible legally for the damage?

ellite over its territory. No such injunction has been forthcoming but later, when satellites are equipped with cameras or TV eyes, there may be many touchy cases of infringement on this sovereign right.

For once a satellite is launched, it is beyond the control of human beings. Locked by gravitation to the earth, it resembles a meteorite revolving around the sun. When a meteorite passes through our lower atmosphere, its speed is comparable to that of a satellite. Both meteorite and satellite are largely, if not entirely, consumed by friction.

It is true that the meteorite is not man-made. Nor is it launched by man. However, the fall of a satellite is just as impossible to control as that of a meteorite. Thus, when meteorites do damage upon falling, the events are called acts of God. In Russia, then, liable if one of her satellites does damage here?

An airline is responsible when a plane falls, because the plane is piloted. A satellite is not piloted after it is in orbit and its fall cannot be predicted.

This, too, therefore can be considered an act of God. Guided missiles have escaped control. One fell in Brazil, and the United States assumed responsibility for it. Whereupon Brazil gave permission for a guiding station on her soil to prevent a recurrence of this type.

But a guided missile is essentially a piloted object. The launching nation tacitly assumes responsibility for its path and descent.

This involves a fine distinction. A guided missile is being acted upon by gravitation, but it goes from point to point on the surface of the earth without circling it. The launching nation has declared in effect that it can set off the missile at one point and put down at another, by built-in controls operated by man. If man or the controls fail, the declaration is still valid.

No one claims a satellite can be controlled. Thus it cannot go OUT of control. Once launched, it belongs to no one—in my opinion—and no one is liable for damage it causes.

Someday, of course, we shall try to bring satellites back safely to earth. Controls will be built into them to make re-entry into the atmosphere and landing possible. Once re-entry is begun, the satellite is again under control and again belongs to the country of origin. That country is liable for damage if the controls fail.

These are the opinions of the writer. Now is the time for serious thinking on this subject, for forestall trouble in the future. How do the legal minds of our country view this?

Whatever Happened to Sally Rand?

By Bob Thomas

LAS VEGAS, Nev., July 14 (AP)

WHATEVER happened to Sally Rand?

At remarkably well preserved 54, she is still waving those ostrich feathers. While she's not doing it with a physics book in one hand, she claims her future lies in a scientific career. Yes, you heard it right—Sally Rand.

"I've been going to school," she announced proudly as she lounged beside a hotel pool in a Man-Mau, one of those formless Polynesian costumes that covered her from neck to toe.

"It took some doing, because I never graduated from high school. But I was allowed to take some courses through the University of California. I took physics, math, chemistry and psychology. And I'm proud to say that I had a 95 average."

"I'm also proud of something else. You know all the tests and records of the university are kept by machines. Well, the American Cyanamid Co., which has a plant in Azusa near my home town of Glendora, Calif., went through the files for employment possibilities. They pulled out my name and offered me a job starting at $800 a month. Not bad, huh?" the former Missourian remarked.

Does this mean she will give up the fast-flowing fans?

"You can't predict those things," she said. "I wanted to. I had hoped to continue school. But I have problems with the tax boys. I had to go out on the road to make more money."

She's been doing just that most of her life. Since starting ing 40 years ago, she has played almost every city of any size in the nation. Her big break came when she flipped the feathers at the Chicago World's Fair.

"That wasn't just accident," she commented. "It was the result of careful planning and exploitation. I paid top money for the best minds in the business. I had to have people I could depend on; after all, there's nothing more vulnerable than a naked fan dancer."

She said she had taken money out of the Chicago and San Francisco fairs than any other concessionaire. Yet she had been unable to give up the fans because of money problems. How come?

"It's a puzzle," she admitted. "I don't drink, I've never put a dime in a slot machine, I've never laid even a $2 bet on a horse, and I'm not a profligate in my way of living. Since 1929, I've lived quietly in Glendora when I'm not working."

Stan Delaplane Beautiful Signs Of Summertime

DO YOU KNOW ANYBODY named Sandra? If so, enter her in a beauty contest immediately. Your reliable handicapper has figured out Sandras will run high in the money this beautiful season.

Summer is certainly here. I can tell the arrival of summer by the onset of beauty contests and oak moths. We had 25 entries in our Miss State contest. Four were named Sandra. Wirephotos are beginning to clog the daily schedule, most of them showing other winning girls. I note a number of dreamy-eyed dreamboats named Darlene. That is another good name this year.

MOST of the beauty contest ladies of this year got themselves named around 1940. I cannot for the life of me recall any personalities named Sandra or Darlene around that time. Must have been though. New children are usually named by their mamas. And their mamas usually name them out of novels or movies.

There are a lot of gentlemen around named Francis X. If you run into a Francis X., he will be about 50. And his mama used to swoon at the matinee over a hunk of jutting chin named Francis X. Bushman.

That is what must have happened with the Sandras and Darlenes. Must have been a novel or two about Sandra and Darlene. Since things were pretty quiet around 1940, I imagine Sandra and Darlene were probably misunderstood housewives. They got married, but somehow they felt they should really have gone to Paris and studied art—well, you know how it goes.

I just missed being named William S. Hart. If I had had my way I would have been named William S. Hart. I had nothing to say about my name. But as I grew, I regretted it bitterly.

William S. Hart was the first movie cowboy. I saw him every Saturday afternoon if I could. Gah! I would have given anything to be called W. S. Hart!

A short time ago I went down to Disneyland in Southern California. And there on the screen in the old-time movie theater, they were playing William S. Hart in an old-time movie. He had the long, horsey face just as I remembered. And he scrunched up his face with emotion as he watched the dance hall girl bang away on the dance hall piano.

I used to scrunch up my face in sympathy. And found myself doing it again these many years later at Disneyland. Mother should have waited until I grew up to where you could see me scrunch my face. She would have known then what to name me: William S. What else?

I have had little to do with naming my own children—my suggestion of Gen. George Custer was received with chilly silence.

I THINK we should let children grow a little and pick their own names. I recall my daughter tearfully asking to be renamed Lassie, after seeing the famous movie dog.

Once I went to school with a boy named Speedball. His father named him after a pitch made famous by Walter Johnson. Another boy I knew in school was named for a famous evangelist. We called him "Revrund."

It would probably be better if we just named our children by numbers. Then let them pick out different names as they go along.

REMOTE CONTROL RANGE: Now one new gas range has an electronic gadget that lets you control top burners from any room in the house. On this so-called "touch of tomorrow" stove, you preset desired temperatures with regular pushbutton controls. Then, you can carry the little electronic device to wherever you're working—or resting—in the house. Press a button and it turns the stove on and off. Two other unusual features; all gas jets can be locked so they can't be turned on by small children; an oven trap catches spillovers in disposable metal foil to cut down clean-up chores.

NOW—STAINLESS STORM-SCREENS: Stainless steel combination storm and screen windows and doors said to last the life of the house are now available for new homes and older ones. One claimed advantage: An occasional wiping with household cleanser and water will maintain the satin finish of the stainless steel; no rust or powdery spots can appear. Also, the high strength of the steel is said to keep frames from warping, sticking or bending. Tracks and complicated sliding mechanisms, too, have been eliminated. There is complete interchangeability of glass panels and glass fiber screen inserts and a simplified self-storing feature.

"SUNKEN" BATHS: The first completely assembled one-piece "sunk" bathtubs are being introduced. Suitable both for new homes and for remodeling, they're of enameled cast iron construction, come in 4½, 5 and 5½ foot lengths, in white and colors. Distinctive looking, they also feature easy and safe entry and exit; a convenient and comfortable six-inch wide and 33-inch long apron seat; a broad, flat bottom and straight sides for maximum bathing space. A high tilting in flange at the ends and the recessed side provide for simple, waterproof tub-to-wall seal.

If you'd like further information on any of the above items, write Lawrence Galton in care of the Post-Dispatch, identifying item, giving date of appearance and inclosing stamped and self-addressed envelope. Inquiries must be sent no later than two weeks after the appearance of the item.

Gary Cooper's 30 Years in the Movies

He Went From Montana Ranch to Film Fame, Fortune;
Lanky Star Is at Home on Range or in Drawing Room

This is the first of three articles on Gary Cooper. Halsey Raines, author of this series, is a former newspaperman who also had been a writer for M-G-M and 20th Century-Fox.

By Halsey Raines

"GARY COOPER has the most beautiful face in the world" was the comment once made by Elinor Glyn, author of torrid novels and social arbiter in the Roaring '20s.

Perhaps most of the vast army of women who have constituted a bulwark of Cooper's following over a gala career of more than three decades wouldn't have expressed themselves quite that way.

Cooper's lean, taut, Western virility was a far cry from Rudolph Valentino's sleek Gallic romanticism; he was quite different from the smoothly chiseled handsomeness of a John Gilbert or Robert Taylor. But at all stages of his career he has exercised irresistible appeal for women.

Cooper has used a minimum of make-up in the movies, as he has played one rugged role after another and it was only recently, after making "Ten North Frederick," that the star's weather-furrowed features supposedly were given a mild going-over by a plastic surgeon.

Perhaps one of the bedrock reasons for the star's fabulous success is that he basically has been content to play himself, and that both offstage and on the screen he has been governed by a fundamental simplicity and naturalness. Where he ran across a character whose motivations puzzled him in a screen script, as was the case with Sgt. Alvin C. York of World War I fame, he went to York's Tennessee retreat, lived with him and came away feeling that he knew him almost as well as he knew himself.

Although Cooper came from a background of Montana's rolling ranges, he had amazing adaptability for all kinds of people and social environments. Several popular misconceptions have surrounded the legend of him. It has been said that as a gauche cowboy, he has always been ill at ease in any place except the great outdoors. While Cooper loves outdoor life, and is fond of riding and hunting, he has been one of the most popular figures at society events in Hollywood, Southampton and the French Riviera.

He may not like formal dinner parties or fancy balls, but he handles himself at such gatherings with the same ease and aplomb as any society editor or veteran committee chairman. Mrs. Gary Cooper's stepfather, Paul Shields, is one of the key figures of the New York Stock Exchange; Cooper has always been as much at home during weeks spent with his wife amid Southampton society as any veteran blue-blood.

There also has been a myth that Cooper was essentially a man of highly limited national abilities, a "Yup" and "Nope" character who spoke laconically because he didn't know how to talk any other way. This legend derived its biggest impetus from the role played by the lanky actor from Montana in "The Virginian." While Mary Brian, as a backwoods schoolteacher, tried to improve her charge's speech, Cooper answered with gruff monosyllabic "Yups" and "Noes."

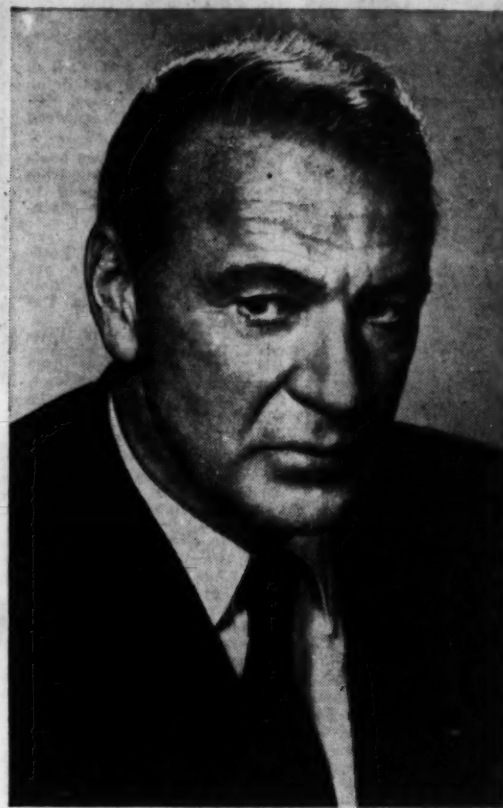

That Cooper not only has a flair for conversation on many topics, but can outdistance most competition, is attested to by many persons. Cooper in real life is friendly, fun-loving, sometimes almost glib. Ernest Hemingway, no mean purveyor of words himself, reported that once, on a hunting trip he took with Robert Taylor and Cooper, the latter gave the others scarcely a chance to get a word in edgewise.

There is another common misconception that Cooper was a boy of backwoods background and limited education, who earned his chance in the movies simply because of his prowess with a horse. Actually Cooper's family tree, on both grandparents' side, is derived from a conservative English background. Gary was sent back to England as a boy to "get rid of his wild West manners" and to give him the benefit of some staid and solid British schooling.

The stay in England left him for a time with an almost-imperceptible trace of accent, but failed to decrease his fondness for Indian legends, playing cops and robbers, and bareback riding. Some years later, however, he attended Grinnell (Ia.) College, where he made a good scholastic record.

One of the ironic features of his stay at Grinnell was that the future Hollywood star made a try for a part in the annual variety play and got a flat rejection. The only reason, he confessed later, that he was trying out for that play was that there was a winsome codd in the cast who had taken his eye. The role he wanted would have given him a chance for an old-fashioned Midwestern clinch.

Well, the Grinnell undergrad who couldn't make the show later became the first movie star to lead all United States wage-earners, with an income of $482,849 in 1939. And during the years after finishing at Grinnell he had ample opportunity to make up for the clinch that never came off in that variety play. Cooper has made love to virtually every feminine star in Hollywood. Flaming Lupe Velez, Lill Damita, Sylvia Sydney, glamorous Marlene Dietrich, Grace Kelly, Ingrid Bergman, Audrey Hepburn, Suzy Parker, and a long parade of other charmers—these are the women on whom Cooper has demonstrated his amatory technique. And if he botched up things in college he has racked up a whole series of Ph.D.s for romance on the silver screen.

WHEN Cooper was born in Helena, Mont., he was christened Frank James Cooper. His father had come from Bedfordshire, England, to seek opportunity in America's expanding West; working at a railroad job during the day and studying long hours at night. After becoming a lawyer he advanced to judge of the Montana Supreme Court. Gary's mother, a quiet-mannered young Englishwoman also adapted herself to the ways of the West.

After returning from England to high school in Montana, Gary was a passenger one day in a car when the brake slipped on a hill. Gary picked himself up after the crash, and for months nursed what was believed to be just some badly bruised ligaments. It was only many years later, after Gary had won success in films, that the doctor asked him how he incurred a broken hip, which had healed after a fashion despite lack of treatment.

If Gary and his family had known about that broken hip, he might never have become a movie star. It was because they thought that some exercise might help straighten out his "sore muscles" that horseback riding was recommended. Gary, favoring his injury, developed trick ways of keeping on the saddle. He learned to anticipate every movement of his horse in advance. Later his expert riding won him his first movie bit.

Cooper's interest in sketching and drawing led him to explore the chance of making a living in that field. By the time he had finished college at Grinnell he was placing an occasional cartoon for publication.

When his father in 1924 undertook to handle an estate case in Los Angeles, Gary went out to visit his parents. And one day he met some friends from back home who insisted he accompany them to a call for fancy riders for an action movie. Gary went along. When he was picked to ride a Mustang in the film, destiny had cast its lot. From then on the long lanky boy from Montana with his skill at handling all kinds of mounts, and his deftness at falling off a horse, became an extra who picked up a lot of jobs.

He started at $5 but before long he was earning $10 an assignment. He met an agent, who officially changed his name from Frank to Gary, because the latter name sounded more unusual and romantic. He even started to get a few scenes with romantic undertones.

"I was probably the tallest, thinnest extra who ever swung into a saddle," reflected the actor recently in an autobiography. "Leading ladies resented playing scenes with me, complaining they had to stand on tiptoe and crane their necks to unladylike angles."

South makes his heart game by ruffing a losing spade in dummy. He takes the diamond king with the ace and sees that with two diamond losers, he can afford to give up only one spade trick. He does not draw trumps immediately; then try the spades, for a 4-2 split will put him down.

The winning play is to take only one round of trumps, then duck a spade in the defense. On regaining the lead declarer takes a second round of trumps and follows with the king and ace of spades. If the suit breaks 3-3, he draws the last adverse trump and cashes the thirteenth spade. If the spade breaks 4-2, there is the chance that the opponent with the doubleton spade also started with only two hearts. This is the case here, and South ruffs his fourth spade in dummy, making game.

Peeling Paint

Peeling paint on the siding around door and window frames and around the cornice where roof meets walls usually is an indication that there are cracks allowing the rain to reach the woodwork. Filling the cracks with calking compound should stop the peeling condition.

thing very interesting and different in the personality of the Montana "corral buzzard."

In 1925 an independent producer, Hans Tlesler, picked him for the lead in a two-reeler. He began to get small parts regularly in features and with a good, chunky role at $65 a week as Ronald Colman's messenger boy in "The Winning of Barbara Worth" emerged as a bona fide leading-man candidate. He played mostly in Western and adventure stories, but it was his characterization of the pilot who went out to be killed, in "Wings," which provided the greatest impetus for his early career.

Theater managers became aware of him—the customers started talking about him—and his name began to appear on marquees. He made his debut in the "talkies" in 1927, in "Shopworn Angel," in which a few sound scenes were dubbed in at the end.

Cooper's salary had gone up to $200 a week with "Wings." In his first days in Hollywood, picking up $5 a day for falling off horses, he hadn't realized that such lush jobs existed. And now, it's $2000 a day in long-term Hollywood contracts.

The break that helped make it possible was when Paramount paired Cooper in "It" and "Children of Divorce" with Clara Bow, a magnetic new star who was getting 35,000 fan letters a week.

From that time on, Cooper and straight cowboy roles were permanently dissociated; he played in other Westerns but he was recognized as a romantic hero—and each month from then on zoomed ahead toward greater popularity.

Clurman-MacVeagh Wedding in East

By Margaret Allen Ruhl

THE WEDDING of Miss Adele Merrill MacVeagh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charlton MacVeagh, former St. Louisans living in Cambridge, Mass., and Dublin, N.H., to Pvt. Rodney Hart Clurman, took place Saturday afternoon in Chesham Church (Episcopal), Dublin. Mr. and Mrs. MacVeagh, who left St. Louis about a year ago, gave the reception at their home, Old Adams Farm.

MRS. CLURMAN... married Saturday.

Daisies, delphinium and snapdragon, combined with ivy, decorated the church for the ceremony, performed by the Rev. James M. Lichter. The officiating clergyman, who was rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Webster Groves, is now rector of St. Paul's in Akron, O.

The bride was attended by Miss Hilda Enos as maid of honor; Miss Patricia Ferguson and Miss Moira MacVeagh, a sister, as bridesmaids, and Miss Priscilla MacVeagh, also a sister, as junior bridesmaid. They wore green, white and blue chintz dresses with harem hemlines and scoop necklines, and wreaths of ivy in their hair. They carried cascades of ivy instead of flowers.

Robert Clurman was his brother's best man. Richard Clurman, another brother, and Charles Peter and Charlton MacVeagh Jr., the bride's brothers, were ushers. White silk taffeta, made with a train and a basque bodice, its boat neck edged with Irish lace, was worn by the bride, who carried ivy and English daisies. Her lace veil was her mother's and was first worn by her great-grandmother at the coronation of Victor Emmanuel as King of Italy. At that time the bride's great-grandfather, Wayne MacVeagh, Attorney General of the United States in the Garfield Administration, was Ambassador to Italy.

After a trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Clurman will live in Alexandria, Va. The bride is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College, her mother's alma mater, and is a researcher in Washington for Congressman Perkins Bass of New Hampshire. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Edwin G. Merrill of Bedford Hills, N.Y., and the late Mr. Merrill, and of the late Charles MacVeagh of Dublin and New York, who was United States Ambassador to Japan, and the late Mrs. MacVeagh.

Mr. Clurman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will N. Clurman of Lawrence, N.Y., is a graduate of Woodstock Country School, South Woodstock, Vt., and Haverford College. Now in the radio and television division of public information for the Military District of Washington, he used to be production co-ordinator for the American Theater Wing's "Command Performance" and associate producer for New York radio and television programs.

Visiting in Ireland.

MRS. ROBERT C. CORLEY, 13 Upper Ladue road, left St. Louis early this month to fly to Ireland to visit in Dublin with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce John Dyson Anderson (Ellen Erwin Corley), who have been living there since their marriage last February. She is expected back in the United States about Aug. 1.

Mrs. Corley then plans to go to Estes Park, Colo., to spend the remainder of the summer with her younger daughter, Miss Catherine, and her son, Robert C. Corley Jr., at Star Ridge, her cottage there.

Miss Green Announces Wedding Plans.

ATTENDANTS FOR MISS ELIZABETH LEIGH GREEN and Dr. William Aubrey Sims Jr., who are to be married Saturday, Sept. 6, are announced. Miss Green, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Rosen and the late John James Green, will be attended by her twin, Mrs. Richard Foster Henley (Marion Croxton Green) of Cincinnati, as matron of honor. Another sister, Miss Cary Croxton Green, is to be maid of honor. Miss Josephine Medart, Miss Polly Park, Mrs. Loren E. Egley Jr. and Mrs. Ray Edward Bollin (Phyllis Jean Vierheller) of New Martinsville, W.Va., will be bridesmaids. Miss Green's cousin, Cynthia Barker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ellery Barker of Emerson, N.J., is to be flower girl.

MRS. HENLEY... to be Honor Attendant.

Dr. Sims, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Aubrey Sims of Jefferson City, will have his cousin, Phillips Dribben of Kansas City, Mo., as best man. Ushers will be Dr. Arthur Schenck of San Francisco; Dr. Slayden Harris, Dr. Everett McClintock, Richard Silfies, Kent Kehr and Rex Whitton Jr.

The wedding will take place at the Church of St. Michael and St. George at 8:30 o'clock at night. The reception afterward will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Rosen at their home, 2 Overhills drive, Ladue.

Mrs. Henley and her infant daughter will arrive Aug. 20 to be at the Rosen home until after the wedding. The baby, born June 11, has been named Catherine Foster. Mrs. Henley will be joined here by her husband the week of the festivities.

A series of prewedding parties is being planned for Miss Green and Dr. Sims. He is a resident at Barnes Hospital.

Miss Hunnius to Be Married in South.

MR. AND MRS. RAYMOND F. HUNNIUS of Athens, Ga., formerly of St. Louis, have announced the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Miss Barbara Ann Hunnius, to Dr. Patrick M. Morgan, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Morgan of Panama City, Fla.

Miss Hunnius's grandmother, Mrs. Alfred G. Busch, 7918 Kingsbury boulevard, Clayton, plans to go South for the wedding which is to take place at the First Presbyterian Church, Athens, Aug. 9.

The bride-elect, who earned her B.S. degree in home economics from the University of Georgia, will receive a degree in education there in August. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta, Phi Upsilon Omicron and Phi Kappa Phi. Her paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Ernst Hunnius, 4233 Ellenwood avenue.

Dr. Morgan is a graduate of the University of Georgia and a member of Sigma Nu and Alpha Psi fraternities.

Mr. and Mrs. William J. Krummel, 7815 Buckingham drive, Clayton, will depart by train July 17 for Casper, Wyo., to visit their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Krummel Jr., who live there. The younger Mrs. Krummel was Miss Ann Beale Hiemenz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur C. Hiemenz.

College Honor Student

MISS HARRIET TAUSSIG... photographed in the library of Mills College, Oakland, Calif.

MISS HARRIET TAUSSIG, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Barrett L. Taussig, 18 Naragansett drive, Ladue, is one of 13 girls on the Mills College campus in Oakland, Calif., to be elected to Phi Beta Kappa at the spring assembly. The number of students elected to the scholastic honorary since the chapter was installed at Mills in 1928 now totals 278. A junior, Miss Taussig, who was graduated from Horton Watkins High School, won the Marjorie Fisher Winston prize for excellence in creative writing a year ago. She is now in summer school at Washington University studying English literature, and is planning to return to Mills Sept. 23.

Dr. and Mrs. Taussig were gone a month earlier in the season. They motored through New England, including Boston and the Maine coast. Their son, Barrett W. Taussig, is home from the University of Colorado.

Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Griesedieck, 1071 Terrace drive, Kirkwood, have just returned from a short stay in Douglas, Mich., where they visited Mr. Griesedieck's sister, Mrs. James A. Butler Jr., 9239 Clayton road. Mrs. Butler is occupying a cottage on the shore for two weeks with her four children, Christy, Susie, Jimmy and Stephen.

Varied Trips For Groups In Webster Groves

DR. AND MRS. FRED B. BALLARD (Carolyn Busse) have returned here from Boston where they lived the past year while he was on the staff of Massachusetts General Hospital. Mrs. Ballard is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin F. Byssie, 15 Devon road, Glendale.

The Ballards, who spent several days last week visiting his brother, James Ballard, and family in Chattanooga, Tenn., will live at 9750 Old Warsaw road, Rock Hill.

Miss Maureen Hardin of Boston, is the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. James J. Gushaw, 1107 Pine Tree lane. She returned here a few days ago with Mr. and Mrs. Gushaw, who had been vacationing in the East. The Gushaws, who were accompanied by their sons, Bradford and Gregory, spent some time at Sandwich, on Cape Cod, and also visited her mother, Mrs. Harry Nanoff, of Worcester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore S. Vickroy, 108 Mason avenue, departed Friday for a three-week holiday at Panama City, Fla. They will be joined by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Howard M. Nelson of Baton Rouge, La., and the Nelsons' baby daughter, Anne.

After their return home, the Vickroys will entertain their son and his family, William R. Vickroy, Mrs. Vickroy, and son, Theodore S. Vickroy, who will come from Mamaroneck, N.Y., for their vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard K. Stubbe have returned to their home in Findlay, O., after being guests for several days of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Claiborne III, 218 Orchard avenue. Mr. Stubbe was a groomsman in the wedding, July 5, of Miss Beverly Jean Wallace, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Wallace, 45 Glen road, and Ralph H. Straub, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph H. Straub, 309 Oakwood avenue.

The Claibornes arrived home just before the wedding from Chicago where they spent 10 days at the Shearson-Blackstone Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Grafton Lohrop, 7 Willow Oak lane, are spending the summer at their cottage, North Lure, at Detroit Lakes, Minn.

The daughters, Mrs. Warren C. Wells of Harrisburg, Pa., and Mrs. Paul E. Claus, 10523 Thornwald drive, Ladue, are their guests for most of the season.

Miss Jayne Gottlieb, Martin Rosen Married

MR. AND MRS. MARTIN Rosen have returned from their wedding trip to Wisconsin resorts and are living at 7452 Parkdale drive, Clayton. Before her marriage June 7 the bride was Miss Jayne Gottlieb, daughter of Mrs. Leo Gottlieb and the late Dr. Gottlieb.

MRS. MARTIN ROSEN

The ceremony took place at the home of Mrs. Gottlieb, 8310 Gannan avenue, University City with Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman officiating. Mr. Rosen and his bride, who were unattended, stood before the living room mantel which was decorated with white carnations and lighted with white candles in silver candelabra. The remainder of the house was decorated with white roses, peonies and smilax. The two families attending the wedding were joined afterward by additional guests for a garden buffet supper.

The bride wore a white lace dress and a fingertip veil gathered to a crown of flowers. She carried a prayer book covered with white satin and adorned with white orchids. Mr. Rosen is the son of Mrs. Joseph Rosen, 7326 Drexel avenue, University City, and the late Mr. Rosen.

DIAPER RASH

When bacteria breed on diaper-wet skin they cause formation of irritating ammonia, making skin sore, raw. Painful diaper rash may follow.

Doctors now know that cornstarch, not being irritatingly alkaline like talcum, is superior for soothing baby's tender skin, and it excels in keeping skin dry and free of itching.

Only Mexsana—of all leading powders—has an exclusively starch base, plus hexachlorophene and other anti-bacterial, healing medications. For baby's diaper rash, Mexsana's best.

Also use Mexsana for adults' skin rashes, athlete's foot itch. Get Mexsana today. You save most by buying larger sizes.

Uncle Ray's Column 'Scottish Robin Hood'

By Ramon Coffman

ALMOST EVERYONE in English-speaking countries knows about Robin Hood, the English outlaw who is credited with many deeds of daring during the Middle Ages.

Less widely known, except in his native land, is Rob Roy, a Scottish outlaw. He has been called "the Scottish Robin Hood," and some have said that he "took from the rich to give to the poor."

Rob Roy, a member of the MacGregor clan, lived two and a half centuries ago. The first 40 years of his life were spent peacefully. He lived on an estate and raised herds of cattle.

Then came punishment because he had failed to pay a heavy debt to a nobleman. His lands and home were taken from him, and his wife and children were "turned adrift in midwinter."

Other MacGregors joined him in forming a band of outlaws. They raided the lands of the duke, and fought the soldiers who were sent against them.

Many a hairbreadth escape was made by Rob Roy, but the narrowest one came after he was captured. He was placed under heavy guard, and knew that hanging was in store for him.

A man who said that he was a messenger from Rob Roy's wife came to the building.

Rob Roy lived to the age of 63. In his later years he paid for his deeds by serving a prison sentence.
